

CITY TO ASK FUND FOR RAIL BRIDGES

$1,439,575 in U. S. Money Sought To Abolish Grade Crossings.

Atlanta will seek $1,439,575 immediately from the federal government for elimination of grade crossings and reconstruction of bridges already existing over others.

This decision was made at a joint meeting of the city planning commission and engineers representing affected railroads. Immediate steps to place the requests in the hands of proper officials will be undertaken.

Of the total requested, $1,153,474 is for new projects and $286,101 for repairs.

Following is the list of the proposed grade crossing eliminations:

North avenue underpass, between State and Strong streets, under the tracks of the N. C. & St. L. railway and Southern railway, $480,375. (Land and adjusting buildings, approximately $72,886.)

McDaniel street underpass, under the tracks of Southern railway, between West Georgia avenue and Berkeley street, $169,000.

Hemphill avenue underpass, North side drive, between Fourteenth street and Bishop street, under the tracks of the Southern railway. (Located in Fulton county), $240,403.

West North avenue underpass under the tracks of the A. B. & C. railroad, between Ashby and Bay streets, $45,638.

Simpson street underpass at Mayson-Turner road, under the tracks of the L. & N. railroad, $78,160.

Decatur street bridge, over Southern railroad, between Bradley and Kroger streets, $130,000.

Total, $1,153,474.

Reconstruction and repairs to the following bridges were recommended because of their unsafe condition:

Edgewood avenue bridge, over Southern railway; reconstruction of west approach, $56,601.

Reconstruction of Magnolia street bridge over the N. C. & St. L. railway and Central of Georgia railway, $61,700.

Reconstruction Piedmont avenue bridge, over the tracks of the Southern railway, between Avery drive and Boulevard, $33,500.

Reconstruction Jones avenue bridge, over N. C. & St. L. railway and Southern railway, $44,100.

West View drive bridge, over L. & N. railroad. Reconstruction of floor with concrete, $3,500.

Reconstruction of Anderson avenue bridge, over the tracks of the A. B. & C. railroad, $20,000.

Reconstruction West Lake avenue bridge, over the tracks of the A. B. & C. railroad, $20,000.

Widening of Boulevard underpass at Georgia railroad crossing, between Georgia railroad and Gartrell street, $48,700.

Total, $286,101.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rin' to Go

If you feel sour and sick and the world looks black, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul. Skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get those two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, acting when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Beware of a substitute. Beware of cheap imitations.

Robert Fiske Named To Head Atlanta Builders' Exchange

New officers of the Atlanta Builders' Exchange who were inducted into office last night at the 27th annual banquet of the organization at the Henry Grady hotel. Seated, left to right, are Robert S. Fiske, president, and Roy G. Jones, vice president. Standing, left to right, are Henry Taylor, vice president; C. R. Williams, treasurer; and Sam Worley, secretary. Constitution staff photo.

Robert S. Fiske, prominent Atlanta consulting engineer, was elected president of the Atlanta Builders' Exchange at the annual banquet and election of officers last night at the Henry Grady hotel.

Other officers elected by the group of architects, engineers and contractors included Roy G. Jones and Henry Taylor, vice presidents, and C. R. Williams, treasurer. Carroll Griffin, M. R. Loveless, James D'Arcy, Frank Gillespie and Walter Aichel were named directors. Sam Worley is secretary.

M. J. Teomans, Georgia's attorney-general, was the principal speaker, and C. B. Beaulieu, retiring president, briefly recited progress made in building circles in Atlanta during the past year. The new president declared:

"The 150 members who attended the banquet were shown the motion pictures of the Alabama-Stanford Rose Bowl football game.

The A. F. of L. intended to force a full test of its strength in the motor factories.

McGrady said he planned an early meeting with Dillon, who declared today that the A. F. of L. controlled the "three keys to the auto situation," and named them as plants making transmissions, carburetors and ignition systems.

Interest centered tonight on Flint, Mich., where five General Motors plants employ 35,000 men. Louis Hart, Flint organizer for the A. F. of L., said a second mass meeting would be held there to consider an appeal of the Toledo strikers that all workers in General Motors plants walk out "until all plants have contracts."

DETROIT, May 1.—(AP)—Strikes and shutdowns in 11 automobile parts manufacturing plants in seven cities have affected 19,280 workers, a survey of the situation disclosed tonight.

WOUNDED AGENT IN BAD CONDITION

Alcohol Tax Unit Officer Given Blood Transfusion; Three in Custody.

Thomas A. Pruett, alcohol tax unit agent shot Tuesday night by a fleeing whisky runner, was reported in a critical condition last night at St. Joseph's hospital.

Pruett underwent a blood transfusion at the hospital yesterday afternoon, 600 c. c. of blood being donated by his superior officer, Inspector W. K. Johnston. The agent rallied slightly following the transfusion, but his condition is still extremely critical, according to hospital attaches.

Meanwhile, a man giving his name as J. Hudson Costley, 24, of Conyers, said to be the operator of a store in Rockdale county and two negroes, Robert Clark, 50, of Covington, and Loss Baker, 60, of Newton county, were arrested by federal officers and placed in Fulton tower. Costley is said to have admitted firing the shot.

The alcohol tax unit agent was shot while attempting to blockade the highway 10 miles north of Conyers, near Big Hand creek and Pruett, with Agent R. B. Scheneman, were trying to stop a truck containing 40 gallons of corn whisky, when the driver stepped behind the truck and fired a shotgun point blank at the former.

The charge of buckshot struck Pruett in the right shoulder. Suffering heavily from loss of blood, he drove his automobile to Conyers, where he collapsed. Brought to St. Joseph's hospital, the agent was so weak that a call was made for donors of blood.

Every Georgia A. T. U. agent, numbering 31, volunteered. The blood of Investigator Johnston was found to match that of the wounded man, and he was selected as the donor.

Sheriff J. Floyd Cook, of Rockdale county, to whom Costley surrendered after the shooting, saying he had shot someone whom he did not know, stated that the version of the shooting as given by Costley was as follows:

That while walking down the road Tuesday night, he saw a man who was carrying a pistol, demanded the keys to his grist mill. Thinking it to be a holdup, Costley surrendered the keys and went to Costley Brothers' store and procured a shotgun. Going to the grist mill he found the door open. When he went inside the man came out and started up the road.

Costley said he accented the man twice and asked him what he was doing there, whereupon the man asked him what he was doing with the shotgun. "Carrying it for protection of my life and property," Costley replied. Whereupon the man drew a pistol and Costley fired at him twice and went to the sheriff and surrendered.

The truck and 40 gallons of corn liquor were confiscated by the alcohol tax unit agents.

CHICAGO, May 1.—(UP)—A May day snow storm swept over portions of the central states today.

In Minn. N. D., the snowfall was described as heavy. It was followed by a cold, driving rain. Snow also was reported at Des Moines, Garrison and Max in North Dakota and the storm moved southeastward.

This afternoon it was snowing in Madison, Wis., and occasional snowflakes mixed with rain in Chicago.

At Rockford, Ill., a Northwest Airways passenger transport plane en route from Chicago to St. Paul, was forced to land. J. E. Orbeck, pilot, reported that the plane had high altitudes and said ice forming on the wings of his ship made it dangerous to continue.

Reports from St. Paul indicated it was raining there today with snow reported from other points in Minnesota.

Temperatures generally were above freezing and it was unlikely that serious damage to crops would result unless colder weather sets in tonight.

were in St. Paul's church auditorium when Bishop Leonard was ready to open the meeting devoted to a high altitude discussion of evangelism. Most of the delegates were downstairs in the vestry renewing old friendships.

"If the brethren are more interested in their fellowship than they are in what I have to say I believe I shall be excused," the bishop said. "They have been warned three times to come into this auditorium and have not done so. I, therefore, adjourn the afternoon session."

So saying the bishop walked out. "The six-day conference opened today."

LOWELL, Mass., May 1.—(AP)—Irrked by the tardiness of delegates, Bishop Adna W. Leonard, Pittsburgh, Pa., summarily adjourned the afternoon session and threw the 139th annual New England Methodist Conference into an uproar last today.

Passing of Disorder in Cuba Leaves Only Luring Dangers

C. W. Massaguer, left, Havana newspaper and magazine editor, and Juan Sabates, right, president of the Cuban Chamber of Commerce, in Atlanta on a good-will tour yesterday, are shown in their hotel room discussing plans for calling attention to Georgians to the numerous recreational advantages of the island during the summer months.

Bacardi rum and beautiful black-eyed senoritas are now the two greatest menaces confronting American tourists in Havana—the Paris of the Western Hemisphere—and Americans visiting the island will find that conditions have returned to normal and Cuba is on the high road to prosperity.

The above statement was made jointly yesterday by Juan R. Sabates, president of the Cuban Chamber of Commerce, and C. W. Massaguer, Cuban newspaper and magazine publisher, who are touring the southeastern states on a good-will mission.

Revolutionary outbreaks in Cuba during the past year have been largely due to economic unrest and this has been completely eliminated by the trade treaty signed by the United States and Cuba last August. As a result of the treaty the volume of business carried on in the island has practically doubled and is steadily increasing, Mr. Sabates, who is also head of the Cuban Tourist Commission, said.

Disorder Has Disappeared. "Havana is once more the Paris of the Western Hemisphere and all thoughts of disorder have disappeared under the regime of President Carlos Menéndez," Mr. Sabates said. "The greatest menaces to American visitors are Bacardi rum, for which our island is famous and the dark-eyed senoritas who are truly beautiful. And I assure any American is willing to face the menace of a glass of Bacardi rum or the glance of a beautiful senorita. Georgia and Cuba have much in common. Cuba uses many Georgia products, including enormous quantities of rosin, turpentine and textile goods. On the other hand, Georgia consumes much Cuban sugar and is a big importer of leaf tobacco."

"Furthermore, the educational institutions of Georgia attracts more Cuban students than those of any other state in the Union. I think if Georgia would concentrate upon it, the Hotel Rates Low. "Cuba is going out of its way to make the island attractive to American visitors," Mr. Williamson stated. "No passports, of course, are necessary and hotel rates are lower than in Atlanta, for instance. The island offers every outdoor attraction, including fishing and hunting, golf, motorizing, swimming and the like."

The Cuban good-will ambassadors have just completed a tour through Florida and Georgia and will leave today for Birmingham. They paid a visit yesterday to Governor Eugene Talmadge and discussed the economic situation in the United States and Cuba.

Following the conclude they enjoyed a motor trip around Atlanta. Mr. Sabates comparing the Druid Hills section of the city with that of the picturesque residential section of Havana. He did not know which was the most beautiful, he said.

ATLANTA BOY SCOUTS WILL TAKE TO SEA

A. L. Myers Jr., newly appointed Scout commissioner of the Atlanta council, yesterday began organization of units in several Atlanta Boy Scout troops in accordance with the Toledo plan of sea scouting.

Membership in a Sea Scout unit is restricted to membership of a particular Scout troop and includes active and former members. The troop Scoutmaster is known as the skipper and the assistant Scoutmaster as the mate. Meetings will be held at different times from the regular troop meetings.

Among the Atlanta troops in the initial organization meeting were: Troop 50, Scoutmaster C. H. West; Troop 1, Bolton, Scoutmaster C. H. West; Troop 1, College Park, Scoutmaster H. O. Stakely; Troop 116, Scoutmaster Hoke Copeland; Troop 64, Scoutmaster L. F. Hardy; Troop 2, Decatur, Scoutmaster J. W. Elder; Troop 1, Peachtree Heights, Scoutmaster J. W. HARRIS CITIZENS LAUD ROOSEVELT

H. C. Kimbrough Named as Delegate to Washington; Civic Clubs Act.

HAMILTON, Ga., May 1.—At a mass meeting of farmers and business men held here Wednesday, H. C. Kimbrough was elected to attend a farm meeting in Washington, and W. W. Williams was named alternate.

The following resolutions commend President Roosevelt and Cully A. Cobb were unanimously passed.

"That Hon. Franklin D. Roosevelt is a patriot and humanitarian without a peer, seeking a more abundant life for all the people. We recognize in him a consistent friend of the submerged and unfortunate members of society. His purposes are grounded in a nobility and generosity that challenges the admiration of the world. Resolved that we highly commend him for the aid he has extended and continues to extend to agriculture throughout the country.

"We heartily endorse the processing tax as one of the means adopted for restoring prosperity to the farm, the success of which as it relates to cotton has succeeded in raising the price from 44 cents in 1932 to 103.2 to 82.7 millions in 1934. We recognize in him a statesman who believes in the reign of right, a friend who believes in the brotherhood of man, a ruler who believes in the triumph of justice and a patriot who seeks to perpetuate enduring peace and glory for this country and universal good will toward the nations of the earth. We hold in our hearts a tender regard for him as our neighbor who makes his part-time home in the adjoining county of Meriwether and we want him to know we are backing him with the same loyalty he has shown unflinchingly to us.

"Resolved, that a copy of these expressions be forwarded by night letter to the Hon. Franklin D. Roosevelt and that copies be furnished to the public press of Georgia. We, the farmers and cotton growers of Harris county, in special mass meeting assembled, do unanimously and enthusiastically endorse your present cotton program in its entirety. For the first time within our knowledge the farmers of this section are being given proper consideration. The old chaotic conditions with its suffering, hardship and despair is rapidly lifting and we now see the dawn of a new day with all that is promising and hopeful. The change can only be attributed to the control program and the processing tax which we earnestly beg to be retained.

"We commend you for the untiring, tremendous and winning fight that you are making against the interests in our behalf."

FARMERS AT OCILLA

OCILLA, Ga., May 1.—(P)—A mass meeting of farmers here adopted a resolution saying "We believe all such agitation (against the processing tax) is not for the best interests of the farmers."

The meeting, composed of cotton, tobacco and peanut growers, went on "record as opposing any and all efforts looking toward the removal of processing tax on our farm products, as we are sure that the tax is beneficial to us and our fellow farmers, without doubt, and to take off the tax would do us untold injury and damage."

COWETA FARMERS FAVOR

CONTINUATION OF TAX

NEWNAN, Ga., May 1.—(P)—At a meeting of the cotton growers at Newnan, Coweta county went on record as sponsoring the AAA program and requesting the administration to continue the cotton program and the processing tax in its present form until something better could be worked out by the farmers themselves.

The following resolution was adopted:

"Newnan, Ga., April 27, 1935.

Hart County Clover Festival Is Attended by 2,000 Farmers

By TURNER HIRS.
HARTWELL, Ga., May 1.—The second annual clover blossom festival held at Nancy Hart school today drew an attendance of 2,000 farmers and others interested in this new cover crop in east Georgia. Thirty Georgia counties were represented at today's festival.

Farmers reported that there are 3,500 acres planted in clover this year in this community, compared with 1,500 in Hart county last year. In the Nancy Hart community alone there are 1,300 acres planted, of which 475 acres will be allowed to ripen for seed gathering.

The event today was sponsored by the Nancy Hart Parent-Teacher Association and the local chapter of Future Farmers of America. Professor E. H. Thomas, superintendent of the Nancy Hart school and vocational agriculture teacher, is primarily responsible for the wide interest being taken in clover growing in this section. As a school project, he studied the local clover farms and advocated the extension of the planting of this hay and soil-building legume.

S. L. Thornton, who has been growing crimson clover 31 years, is the recognized pioneer in the movement to increase the planting of this crop. He has 150 acres this year. Mark T. Warren is the largest single grower in the county with 175 acres in clover. This plant is now grown on practically every farm in the Nancy Hart community.

The exercises today opened at 11 o'clock, welcoming addresses being made by Mrs. Lois McConnell, president of the local P. T. A.; Horace Crittenden, president of the Future Farmers Club, and S. L. Thornton. Talks were made by L. M. Sheffer, county, wish to express our appreciation to President Roosevelt and Secretary Wallace for their untiring efforts in support of agriculture and rehabilitation of the nation as a whole.

"There is, knowing that the supply and demand of any product govern its price, we recommend that the processing tax and the present cotton control program be continued in force until something better is found.

"All industries and manufacturers curtail their productions, thereby increasing the price. It is evident that without some form of control the farm income would decrease very rapidly. If there should be anything better than the processing tax, we would be open to consideration."

LIONS CLUB ENDORSE

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT

HAMILTON, Ga., May 1.—(P)—The Lions Club of Hamilton at its meeting this week voted to send to President Roosevelt the following telegram:

"We are 100 per cent with you in your noble, unselfish and democratic program, and pledge our full co-operation in its final and complete achievement."

W. H. Rittenhouse, secretary, said the Lions Club is not in any way intended to be a political organization, but that the message was sent by the Lions "as an expression of their sincere sentiment" for the president.

KIWANIS CLUB WIRE

CONFIDENCE MESSAGE

MONTEZUMA, Ga., May 1.—The following telegram was sent to President Roosevelt today: The Montezuma Kiwanis Club, composed of 50 representative citizens from all parts of Macon county, Ga., wishes to again assure you of our confidence in your integrity of purpose, our faith in your ability and our sincere belief in your plans to relieve distress which has heretofore prevailed. We believe that the results so far fully justify a continuance of your plans. With very best wishes for your success."

The News also published testimony of Elizabeth Wann, Mrs. Vanderbilt's personal maid, contradicting the butler's statements. Miss Wann is quoted:

"Zaig must have had a dream about nude women in the house."

Nathan Burkan, counsel for Mrs. Vanderbilt, drew from Zaig, the News said, the admission that he kept notes of Mrs. Vanderbilt's actions and reported them to Frank L. Crocker, one of Mrs. Whitney's attorneys.

state supervisor of agricultural education; L. C. Westbrook, Hart county agent; Harry L. Brown, director of agriculture extension in Georgia; E. D. Alexander, extension agronomist of the State College of Agriculture; Rush Burton, editor of the Lantana Times; R. E. Matherson, state revenue commissioner; Herman DeLaperriere, state purchasing agent; Loy E. Rast, regional director of soil erosion service; M. D. Mobley, assistant supervisor of agricultural education in Georgia; George Martin, supervisor of agricultural education.

After the exercises lunch was served and tours were made to several of the clover farms. The clover grown here serves a three-fold purpose. As a soil builder, for hay and much is grown and allowed to go to seed, which are gathered for sale. Seed from the local crops are very much in demand, not only with other farmers in the county, but throughout the state.

The clover farms are at their height of growth at this time and present a scene of rare beauty.

2,000 ARE EXPECTED

AT ATHENS SHOW TODAY

ATHENS, Ga., May 1.—(P)—Dean Paul W. Chapman said today he expects approximately 2,000 visitors at the University of Georgia College of Agriculture for livestock-legume day Thursday.

The 15th Little International Livestock show Thursday night will feature the program.

The program will begin at 10 o'clock with an assembly meet at Hardman hall and will end following the program at 7:30 p. m. The day will be spent in witnessing interesting demonstrations, inspection of dairy cattle, legume fields and farm machinery in action. The Saddle and Sirolo Club sponsors the show.

of Georgia for his opposition to the plan.

The meeting was called to order by R. E. Miller, county agricultural agent, and the benefits of the processing tax was discussed favorably by a number of those present. After about an hour's discussion a motion was made that a resolution be adopted endorsing the plan and that this be sent to Secretary Wallace. This motion was promptly amended to include condemnation of the governor for his opposition, whereupon County Agent Miller retired from the chair, saying he could not take part in matters political.

Judge J. F. McCrackin was called to the chair and put the motion.

Only dirt farmers were allowed to vote, and the vote was unanimous in approving Secretary Wallace and condemning Governor Talmadge.

Atlantans in Concert.

ATHENS, Ga., May 1.—(P)—The Atlanta Philharmonic orchestra will appear in concert at the University of Georgia Thursday night under sponsorship of the University Glee Club.

In its fourth season, the orchestra is under the direction of Georg Lindner. Hugh Hodgson, member of the university faculty, is soloist.

Suppressed Testimony of Butler

In Vanderbilt Case Revealed

NEW YORK, May 1.—(P)—The Daily News today prints the hitherto suppressed transcript of the testimony of Charles Zaig, butler for Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt given in her court battle with Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney for the custody of her child, 11-year-old Gloria Vanderbilt.

Zaig, the News said, testified that he saw Mrs. Vanderbilt and Mrs. Helen Mayre Thomas, of Washington, D. C., both nude drinking in the library of the Vanderbilt mansion in New York at 6 o'clock one spring morning.

The News also published testimony of Elizabeth Wann, Mrs. Vanderbilt's personal maid, contradicting the butler's statements. Miss Wann is quoted:

"Zaig must have had a dream about nude women in the house."

Nathan Burkan, counsel for Mrs. Vanderbilt, drew from Zaig, the News said, the admission that he kept notes of Mrs. Vanderbilt's actions and reported them to Frank L. Crocker, one of Mrs. Whitney's attorneys.

Zaig also testified, the News states, regarding parties given by Mrs. Vanderbilt in her New York home. Cross-examination of Zaig by Burkan regarding Mrs. Vanderbilt's mother, Mrs. Harry Hayes Morgan who testified against her, included these questions and answers:

Q. You think was there?

A. Not always.

Q. Most of them?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. And at all these parties Mrs. Morgan you think was there?

A. Not always.

Zaig acknowledged to Burkan, the News continues, that he once admitted two men he did not know to Mrs. Vanderbilt's home. Burkan contended they came there to plant evidence.

Zaig, the published transcript continues, admitted visiting Crocker's office to answer questions, but he denied advising him of Mrs. Vanderbilt's decision to move to the Hotel Sherry-Netherland on Burkan's warning that there were spies in her home.

EVICIONS CONTINUE AT LAGRANGE MILLS

Googe Issues Attack on Governor and Mills for Use of Troops.

By RANDOLPH FORT,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

LAGRANGE, Ga., May 1.—(P)—Four families of striking textile workers were evicted today from houses owned by the Callaway textile mills, but the ouster of this group and 10 other families who have been put out this week does not mean that they are homeless or hungry.

Meanwhile, no news was received here concerning the decision of the National Textile Labor Relations Board in the case growing out of the dispute between the Callaway mills and some of its workers. The decision is expected some time this week.

In Atlanta, George Googe, representative of the American Federation of Labor, issued a statement attacking Governor Talmadge and the Callaway mills, for use of national guardsmen in the strike. He said that the textile board that evictions be withheld, pending its decision, "we are informed this morning that the men, women and children will be thrown into the streets," and that the "legal property rights under the law of Georgia will be enforced at the point of the bayonet."

Practically all families who became jobless when they walked away from their jobs at the mills here about two months ago have been absorbed on the rolls of the Troup county Federal Emergency Relief Administration.

Families evicted so far have found places to stay and have been moved to them in trucks hired by the FERA. Some families have found living quarters here. Others moved in with relatives on the streets, and some are moving into the country where rents are cheap, or are free.

Cason Callaway, president of the mills, left here today, saying he was going to New York on a business trip.

ATHENS BONDS BOUGHT

BY ATLANTA BIDDERS

Following spirited bidding an issue of $75,000 city of Athens (Ga.) 3 1/2 per cent waterworks bonds was sold to a group of Atlanta bond houses yesterday. The bonds were recently voted by citizens of Athens and are being sold to provide funds to improve and extend the present waterworks plant.

The Atlanta firms, successful bidders who are offering the issue for sale, are Brooke, Tindall & Company, Clement A. Evans & Company, Wyatt, Neal & Vagener and Norris & Hirschberg, Inc.

The bonds are due January 1, 1965.

Bidding was close, with only $150 separating the high and the second high bidders.

RANDALL FACES TRIAL

IN MACON MONDAY

MACON, Ga., May 1.—(P)—Trial of Joel O. Randall, Atlanta man indicted on a charge of burglarizing the offices of the Southern Bell Telephone & Telegraph Company several weeks ago, will be called in Bibb county superior court Monday morning. It was announced tonight by Ben T. Watkins, police chief, who was summoned as a witness for the state.

Gordon Cadet Awarded

Essay Contest Prize

BARNESVILLE, Ga., May 1.—Milton Williams, Gordon College cadet, a resident of Washington, Ga., has received notice that he is one of 25 winners of prizes in an essay contest recently sponsored by the American Boy. There were 2,683 entries.

Young Williams won a trip to Japan last year in a similar contest.

Share Wealth Members Are Asked To Send Dime

VALDOSTA, Ga., May 1.—Although the postoffice department recently declared the "send a dime" chain letters were in violation of the postal laws, several of the letters reached Valdosta today, all of them being promptly relegated to the waste baskets of the recipients. The letters dwell on the "share-the-wealth" plan, and asked the recipients to enclose a dime to the name appearing at the top of the list, and write five similar letters and mail them to friends.

JUDGE SUTTON DENIES HE WROTE REPEAL BILL

Wilkes County Legislator
Says His Act Not One
Adopted in House.

WASHINGTON, Ga., May 1.—

Judge C. E. Sutton, of Washington, Wilkes county representative in the legislature, denied the statement by Marvin Griffin, vice chairman of the Georgia Association for Local Option, that the liquor bill now before the people was the work of Judge Sutton, widely known as a temperance leader.

Judge Sutton charged the Griffin statement was a misrepresentation of the facts and explained his long fight against repeal, a fight which he is continuing in the present campaign.

"The statement alleged to come from S. Marvin Griffin has been handed to me. I know Mr. Griffin to be a high gentleman and do not believe him capable of misstating facts."

"The house had been hopelessly deadlocked on the various bills of which there were three. Many of the bills in the house, of whom I was one, wanted the liquor question fairly submitted to the people of the state. I still want the state to vote on the question. In announcing my vote for submission every member of the house knew that fact."

"When the house became deadlocked I was approached by a number of leaders who asked me if I could not draw a bill which would submit the question. I, with other dyes, had offered numerous amendments to the bills which did not pass. I agreed to act as arbitrator to reconcile the differences, and made a draft of a bill which was submitted to a conference of the proponents of the repeal bills. That conference I refused to attend, and I refused to sponsor or take any credit for the measure."

It was known in the house, was discussed from the floor and all my friends, including Professor R. L. Ramsey, were told that I had arbitrated the differences. The draft of the bill I drew was amended and changed in many particulars by the house and senate. I have the original showing the changes."

"The provisions of the bill adopted are far more lenient than the draft submitted by me. My position, announced publicly, was to vote for submission and then to use my utmost efforts to keep my state and county dry."

"I have always been a prohibitionist. I do not believe that Mr. Griffin will deny one word that I have stated."

STATSBORO CARRIER

FIRE UPON ROUTE

STATSBORO, Ga., May 1.—An attempt to murder Arthur E. Brannen, rural mail carrier of Statesboro, who was fired upon point blank by an unseen assassin Tuesday while delivering mail, is being investigated by postal inspectors, according to J. W. Cole, of Atlanta, regional postal inspector.

Brannen was traveling through an isolated swamp section 12 miles from Statesboro on his rounds when he observed a tin container placed upon the top of a mail box, apparently a sign that the box contained mail for him to pick up.

MERIWETHER CITIZENS TO FORM F. D. R. CLUB

Club to Inform World of State's Opinion of President Planned.

MANCHESTER, Ga., May 1.—Citizens of Meriwether county, in which is located the Georgia home of President Roosevelt, will meet here Thursday night to form the "Give-the-Credit-Club of Georgia" with the announced purpose of telling the world of the regard Georgians have for the president.

W. E. Smith, local attorney, who has served six terms in the state legislature, said 500 residents of two districts of the county have signed the petition of organization which is to be perfected at a meeting here Thursday night.

Smith said other meetings were planned for every county in Georgia, and that a state rally would be held in Warm Springs July 4. President Roosevelt is to be invited to attend that state meeting.

The meeting Thursday night will be held at 7:30 o'clock, central time, in the Manchester school auditorium. Out-of-the-state and local speakers are to appear on the program. Plans for the mammoth rally at Warm Springs, called "Appreciation Day," set for July 4, will also be outlined Thursday night.

Smith says efforts will be made to make it the biggest event of its kind ever held in Georgia. A barbecue dinner with state and national speakers appearing on the program will probably be the order of the occasion, Smith said.

Harvey Kennedy, of Barnesville, former legislator and prominent member of the American Legion, is assisting in the state organization, it is announced.

WILLIAM V. CUSTER, 61,

FORMER JUDGE, PASSES

DO THAN, Ala., May 1.—(P)—William Vance Custer, 61, former judge of superior court at Albany, Ga., died here this morning in a hospital after an illness of a month.

Judge Custer served as superior court judge at Albany from 1921-29, when he retired to re-enter the private practice of law at Bainbridge, Georgia.

He was born at Humboldt, Tenn., and for the past 30 years had resided in Georgia.

He is survived by three sons, William Vance Custer Jr., of Bainbridge; Ben Scott Custer, of the Pensacola air station; Oliver Custer, of Macon, and two daughters, Misses Eleanor and Ruth Custer, of Bainbridge.

Franco-Soviet Accord

May Be Signed Today

PARIS, May 1.—(UP)—Formal signing tomorrow of the new Franco-Russian alliance of mutual armed assistance against an aggressor—bringing these two powers closer together than any time since the bolshevik revolution—appeared certain tonight.

Foreign Minister Pierre Laval said, after another conference with Russian Ambassador Vladimir Potemkin, that he was confident the pact will be signed in Paris tomorrow afternoon. Potemkin sent the latest revised draft to Moscow for immediate action.

VALDOSTA PUBLISHER

IS SERIOUSLY ILL

VALDOSTA, Ga., May 1.—(P)—Dr. A. Griffin, prominent physician and president of the Valdosta Press, Inc., publishers of the Valdosta Times, was reported critically ill at his home today.

He was confined to his bed earlier in the week, but his condition was not thought to be serious until yesterday afternoon. Pneumonia developed yesterday, however.

TRAVELERS TO REPORT GAIN IN MEMBERSHIP

SAVANNAH, Ga., May 1.—(P)—A gain in Georgia membership in the Travelers' Protective Association is to be reported by State Secretary Albert Ehrlich, of Savannah, to the fortieth annual state convention here Friday and Saturday.

The opening business session is scheduled for Friday morning with John W. Sirman, president of the Savannah post, to call the convention to order, after which B. B. Baber, of Atlanta, the state president, is to take charge.

The program includes addresses by Robert M. Hitch, Savannah attorney; W. G. Suttie, managing editor of the Savannah Evening Press; reports of the state officers, and other business.

A luncheon will be held between the Friday business sessions; a dance is on the program for Friday night and a boat ride to Daufuskie Island, S. C., is planned for Saturday.

The state officers include Mr. Baber, president; Max Hornstein, Savannah, first vice president; P. P. Whitaker, Waycross, second vice president; Frank T. Schnell, Columbus, third vice president; Rev. John S. Wilder, D. D., Savannah, state chaplain; William Woodruff, Atlanta, state attorney.

Sparta Howls Down

Share Wealth Speaker

SPARTA, Ga., May 1.—Rev. Gerald K. Smith, national organizer for Senator Huey Long's "Share-Our-Wealth Society," was not allowed to speak on the streets here this afternoon. Each time he attempted to address the crowd his voice was drowned out by the noise of automobile horns and jeers from the crowd. After several attempts, Rev. Smith climbed down off his speaking truck and appealed to the mayor.

He was later ordered out of the city by Sheriff Bob Wiley, and he lost no time in leaving.

M. D. BROWNING, 83,

SUCCUMBS IN ATHENS

ATHENS, Ga., May 1.—M. D. Browning, 83, a resident of Athens for 75 years, died at residence Wednesday afternoon following several months' illness. He was an elder in the First Christian church and prominent in church work many years and an old member of the Mt. Vernon Lodge (Masonic) and holding life membership in same.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Wanda Love Browning; a daughter, Mrs. W. C. Stanley, Atlanta, and a son, J. A. Browning, Columbia, S. C. Funeral will be held Thursday afternoon at the First Christian church at 3:30 o'clock, Dr. S. C. Griggs officiating, assisted by Dr. C. C. Jarrell, presiding elder Elberton-Athens district. Church officials will form an honorary escort and members of Mt. Vernon Lodge Masons will attend. Interment will be in Oconee Hill cemetery.

SPECTER OF TAXES RAISED AT C. OF C.

Americans Will Be Most Heavily Taxed in World,
Bell Avers.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(UP)—Americans will be the most heavily taxed people in the world unless New Deal spending is curbed immediately, business leaders warned today in appealing to the government to give industry a chance to function normally again.

"Few know it but Americans already are more heavily taxed per capita than the French and the Germans," said Bell. "Unless we cut out public works we will soon be more heavily taxed than the English."

He cited figures showing that the per capita tax in the United States today is $70.84 more than a year ago, compared to $38.82 in Germany and $48.71 in France. As American taxes soar, the British have balanced their budget and are lowering levies. The per capita tax in the United Kingdom was $91.81 in 1934 and has been cut to $87.50.

"Haven't Seen Anything." In defense of this situation, Bell said, the New Dealers only say, "You haven't seen anything yet!" Bell's observations came as the representatives of trade and commerce opened the second day of their bombardment on the recovery administration. More militant than a year ago when they felt the New Deal had reached a peak of experimentation, the delegates attacked the social security program, proposed elimination of holding companies, the NRA, the AAA and other recovery units.

The thousands of words which speakers have loosed upon the delegates have made clear the general position of business toward many of Mr. Roosevelt's policies. The following are a few of the more important ones:

Gist of Recommendations: Social security: Should be given more careful study and action should be delayed until commerce has recovered.

The AAA: Should be scrapped. The AAA: Should be revised and extended in such a way as to give industry wider powers toward self-regulation.

The pending Wheeler-Rayburn public utilities holding company bill: Should be abandoned and replaced by federal regulation of these units.

The Black 30-hour-work week bill: Should be killed.

The Wagner-Connelly labor disputes bill: Will subject industry to the power of organized labor and should either be scrapped or the unions made responsible for their acts.

The administration's banking bill: Will alarm business and industry and should be abandoned.

Monetary question: Quit tinkering with the currency.

Congress: Is frightening business and should quit at the earliest possible moment and go home.

Hostility Is Borne: Wendell L. Wilkie, president of the Commonwealth & Southern Corporation, charged that the "hostile attitude of government itself toward industry" alone is retarding recovery.

The pending utilities holding company measure, he asserted, would destroy wealth by ruining thousands of investors in utilities stocks.

TUGWELL IS GIVEN FARM LAND SET-UP

Rural Families Will Be Transferred From Poor to Good Farms.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(AP)—A senate order for an inquiry into relief spending capped a series of developments today as President Roosevelt gathered the material to give official life to his four billion dollar work organization.

Among the chief happenings:

Mr. Roosevelt issued an order giving the rural resettlement division, with Rexford Guy Tugwell as administrator, authority to go ahead with a monthly allowance of $250,000 for administrative expenses. The order empowered Tugwell to buy or condemn land for the program.

Originally $10,000,000 for the executive order gave Tugwell $10,000,000 for administrative expenses. This was changed after the afternoon meeting to $250,000 with the explanation that this smaller sum was expected to see Tugwell's section would operate on a month to month basis until Hopkins completed his survey of the unemployed and it was decided definitely

'Sky Dancers' To Perform Here One Week From Today

Benny and Betty atop the Anslay. Betty skips the rope on a narrow ledge while Benny inspects the scenery.

Need for additional training has caused a change in the day of the sky dance which will be presented by those two daring artists, Benny and Betty.

Thursday of next week—just one week from today—from 2 p. m. to 8 p. m., this intrepid pair will dance hundreds of feet in the air on a platform only 24 inches in diameter. Next Thursday is the day, and the building will be announced within a few days.

Benny and Betty are already in training for this thrilling and dangerous performance. Imagine as they are indebted to the people's virtue, adaptability and loyalty.

"Much has been achieved in the last three years. Before there were less than 2,500,000. Today there are less than 2,250,000. Think of conditions in other, much larger nations with plenty of money and raw materials and with fewer people to the square mile—they have not succeeded in doing it."

Pleas for Unity.

The realm leader assured his hearers that his greatest task was to make them happy and mentioned his sacrifices to attain unity, declaring, "difficulties remain to be overcome."

"May other nations understand," he said, "that the Germany of today is not the Germany of yesterday. There are, fellow citizens, ask you to bind faster the hand of the community. Do not forget that you are members of one people as ordained by God."

Even though "foreign nations may offer me whole continents," he declared, "I would rather be the poorest citizen here."

Declaring "great ages always result from strong leadership," Hitler said critics of the nazi movement "are proven to have been wrong" and declared:

"All we see today would be impossible if Germany had not experienced an inner-transformation. That we could unify our people is the great accomplishment of this century as far as Germany is concerned and will outlast everything else."

Serves With Life.

"We shall not rest until we give to the last German his daily bread. . . . Demonstrate to the world your faith in your people and state. My will must be your confession. I serve my people with my life."

Despite the storm, Berlin's May day demonstrations at the Luftgarten, opera house and the airfield were held in the face of the recent reports of flags, uniforms, loud speakers, marching columns, bands and May trees.

Flags and party banners were profuse at the airfield and the reich's soldiers from nine divisions, a scout corps, and a number of other units, surrounded solidly the rostrum and grandstand where Hitler, Goebbels, who introduced him, members of the diplomatic corps, high government and party officials and workers delegations were gathered.

A holiday air prevailed elsewhere in Berlin, with no newspapers appearing, government departments, banks and exchanges closed and delivery of mail suspended.

FOUR LIVES CLAIMED IN EUROPE'S CELEBRATION

LONDON, May 1.—(AP)—Europe's once pastoral festival of May Day, ushered in by bombs and scuffles, developed under stern police precautions into a peaceful observance of the international labor day.

Moscow displayed her military might before Joseph Stalin, Russia's "man of steel."

Elsewhere, the day for the most part was one of festivities—free concerts in Vienna, quiet meetings in Paris, uneventful dances and concerts in Italy, a "fashion parade" of well-dressed working men in Stockholm, and jubilee festivities in England.

Bulgarian Riots Worst.

The worst outbreak reported was that at Enin, in northeastern Bulgaria, where goons were attempting to break up a communist demonstration were said to have fired on the throng and to have drawn a return fire in which an officer was killed and several persons wounded.

Spain's May Day dawned on incidents related to the celebration in which a policeman died at Madrid and a youth at Barcelona. Another officer died after a skirmish at Baguiolet, France. But police precautions prevailed generally later in the day.

The roll of drums, the roar of airplanes, the rattle of tanks and artillery caissons, and the tramp of vast hordes of armed men, heard in Moscow, where Stalin stood at Lenin's

Gray Hair

Best Remedy Is Made At Home

You can now make at home a better gray hair remedy than you can buy by following this simple recipe: To half-pint of water add one ounce bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Any drugstore has this up or you can mix it yourself at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. Barbo imparts color to streaked, faded or gray hair, making it soft, sticky. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.—(adv.)

RELIEF STOPPAGE FACES 2 STATES

FERA Silent on Illinois and Pennsylvania as Mo. Votes Fund.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(AP)—Federal relief officials maintained a close-lipped silence today on whether federal funds would be withheld during May from Illinois and Pennsylvania and their more than 3,000,000 needy jobs.

Both states had failed to meet relief administration demands for larger relief contributions. Only today Missouri was removed from the same category by passage of a bill appropriating $500,000 for relief this month. Harry L. Hopkins, the relief administrator, declined to comment, but the Missouri state administrator ordered activities resumed.

Officials predicted that after Governor Guy B. Clark signs the measure, Missouri will receive its allotment, but they offered no predictions about Pennsylvania and Illinois.

It was emphasized that in addition to Illinois and Pennsylvania, several other states have not complied with the requirement that they increase their contribution.

The example of Georgia, where Hopkins last month federalized the state administration, was cited by some who saw a possibility that Illinois relief might be similarly assumed. Hopkins gave no explanation for his action in Georgia or for a similar move in Louisiana. But charging a "policy breakdown," he earlier had federalized the Ohio relief administration.

penchment trial to the economic condition of Dixie's share croppers.

At 3:30 the senate reconvened. A hurry call had to be sent to the Rev. Zebulon B. Phillips, chaplain. The prayer after the senate adjourns and starts a new legislative day. The senate was starting a new legislative day in the middle of the afternoon.

Senator Pat Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, moved for consideration his compromise soldier bonus bill immediately after the prayer. One it was made the pending order of business in the senate, Robinson asked that consideration be delayed until the middle of the afternoon.

The dying hours of the filibuster Senator William E. Borah, Republican, Idaho, was attacking the constitutionality of the anti-lynching bill.

"No one believes in lynching," he said. "I am most decidedly, however, on the question of constitutionality I have not changed my mind. You can only prevent lynching by building up public opinion against it. Without the moral support and intellectual opinion of the people, federal power to prevent it will be helpless."

Senator Carter, Glass, president of the Virginia, chimed in, and attacked the New Deal for attempting to impose federal regulation on the states. He branded recent decisions of the supreme court, which upheld some of the sections of the NRA and AAA.

"If Thomas Jefferson were alive," Glass said, "he would not be able to find words in his vocabulary adequately to characterize this court."

five wives, beginning with my mother, whom he deserted four months before I was born. He has mistreated them all. His present wife is at home now, unable to come to the shop because of the way he has mistreated her.

"In the argument I said Mrs. Downs would come back to the shop and my father said she would not. He then shouted, pointing to Mrs. Carter, that woman is in charge of the office and if you don't like it get out and stay out!" He added some more curses. I, a pistol-wielding workbench and fired at him twice.

"Mrs. Carter screamed at me and she cursed me, too. I do not remember what happened then but I know I pulled the trigger on the pistol several more times. I went to the back of the shop and told J. C. West, who was working there, to call the police."

Patrolman J. S. Strickling, working at Alabama and Forsyth streets, and Patrolman Barrow, working at Alabama and Broad streets, ran to the shop, arriving there immediately behind Hairs.

"Alvin and Bill appeared to have been drinking heavily," Patrolman Strickling said.

"All in all, shots had been fired in the pistol," Barrow said after inspecting the weapon. "Two of them struck Downs and the other three were used on Mrs. Hairs."

The elder Downs was 56 years old and lived at 1323 Stewart avenue. He has been a resident of Atlanta for a number of years. His first wife, Mrs. Downs, Alvin's mother, is said to be living in Augusta. Alvin Downs said he did not know where the other former wives of his father resided.

Elder Downs, before taking up work work, was a vaudeville actor and toured the south extensively.

Downs is survived by his wife and five sons, Alvin, William H. Harvey, Richard and Charles C. Downs Jr. Funeral arrangements will be announced by Brandon-Bond-Condon Company.

President of Ohio Wesleyan To Speak at Initiation Here

Five Emory University graduates and a student recently elected to Phi Beta Kappa, national honorary fraternity, will be honored at a banquet at 7 o'clock tonight in the cafeteria at Emory. The men are, top row, left to right, Robert C. Mizell, president of the Atlanta Taxpayers' League; Dean Raymond Paty, of Emory University, and Dr. Clyde L. Colson, assistant law professor at Emory. Lower row, left to right, are William E. Goodyear, Emory senior; Dr. W. Powell Jones, assistant professor of English at Western Reserve University, and W. B. Stubbs, associate dean at the Valdosta Junior College.

President Edmund D. Soper, of Ohio Wesleyan University, will make the initiation address for the six Emory men recently elected to Phi Beta Kappa, national honorary fraternity, at a banquet to be given in honor of the new members Thursday night at 7 o'clock in the university cafeteria. Dr. Soper, a former president of the Association of American Colleges, will also make a public address at 8:15 o'clock in the university auditorium.

Three of the newly elected men graduated in the class of 1931. These are Dr. Clyde L. Colson, assistant law professor at Emory; Dr. W. Powell Jones, assistant professor of English at Western Reserve University, and Dean Raymond Paty, of Emory. Robert C. Mizell, president of the Atlanta Taxpayers' League, and W. B. Stubbs, associate dean at the Valdosta Junior College, were also alumni elected to Phi Beta Kappa.

William E. Goodyear, a senior, son of Professor and Mrs. Nolan A. Goodyear, of 2223 Emory road, was the only student elected to Phi Beta Kappa in the spring elections. Goodyear is a past president of the Political Science Club and is a member of the Chi Phi social fraternity.

Invitations to the banquet have been issued to all members of Phi Beta Kappa in Atlanta and on the Emory campus. It was held at the Emory campus.

Dr. Soper was dean of the school of religion at Duke University from 1925-1928 and is a former professor of religion both at the Drew Theological Seminary and at Northwestern University. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa and of Phi Delta Theta, social fraternity.

F. D. R. DEFEAT SEEN ON NRA MEASURE

session to revise the recovery law more permanently on the basis of court decisions on its constitutionality. Meanwhile, the administration would be free to reorganize and revise the code structure to meet the criticisms which have been raised.

Despite President Roosevelt's recommendation by NRA foes, Chairman Harrison and the other administration spokesmen supported.

The chief executive in a conference with congressional leaders yesterday turned the plan down, but was authoritative reported to have said he would sign such a measure if it was the best he could get. Richberg, NRA chief, bitterly opposed the proposal.

The swift denouement of the long controversy over NRA came in a brief two-hour session of the finance committee, in which there was surprising unanimity of thought in view of the many conflicting views heretofore expressed.

All Claim Victory.

Foes and critics of the recovery law were quick to claim a victory. Senator Nye, republican, North Dakota, one of the leading critics, characterized the committee's decision as "very fine," adding "that our law expedite and get NRA out of the way temporarily and give the administration 10 months to accomplish the reforms which he claimed can be made without a new law."

Nye added sarcastically, however, that "if Richberg accomplishes the reforms as fast in the next 10 months as in the past two, we still will have the same problem on our hands next session."

"It will give the courts an opportunity to pass on every phase of the law and when we meet in January we will proceed immediately to consideration of a further extension. Meanwhile, I hope two, we still will have the same problem on our hands next session."

"I will give the courts an opportunity to pass on every phase of the law and when we meet in January we will proceed immediately to consideration of a further extension. Meanwhile, I hope two, we still will have the same problem on our hands next session."

"Is this satisfactory to the president?" Harrison was asked.

"I prefer not to say," he replied.

Senator McNary, republican, later commended the committee's action as "a splendid achievement."

The finance committee set up a subcommittee to draft a resolution code, which will be held tomorrow to finally approve the measure.

Harrison outlined the purpose of the provisions to be incorporated in the extension resolution as follows:

"That no price-fixing shall be permitted or sanctioned under the code, except in those cases of mineral natural resources which now have price-fixing provisions.

"That no commerce engaged wholly in intrastate trade shall be eligible for a code."

"That the president shall have a certain number of days to review the present codes with a view to approving them to carry out the exceptions in the resolution."

FIFTEEN HELD TO JURY ON LIQUOR CHARGES

Group Alleged To Be Members of South Side 'Corn Whisky' Ring.

Fifteen men, alleged members of a liquor ring supplying Atlanta's South Side with "corn" whisky, were ordered held to the federal grand jury in bonds ranging from $1,000 to $100 when arrested before United States Commissioner E. S. Griffith yesterday afternoon.

Twelve of the men were arrested April 12 when agents of the Alcohol Tax Unit under Investigator W. K. Johnston, raided a garage at 291 Walker street, S. W. The remaining three were taken into custody later. Seven other members of the alleged ring are still being sought.

Commissioner Griffith set the bonds of the 10 white men arrested at $1,000 each. They are Glenn Rannister, John Barry, C. L. Ray, William S. Smith, H. Clifford Landers, Ivey Clay, Marion Clay, Ray Leach, Corbin Evans and Carter W. Daniel. The others, who are negroes, were ordered held in bonds of $100 each. They are J. C.

Rivers Visits Capitol But 'Won't Be Quoted'

Speaker E. L. Rivers, of the house of representatives, was at the capitol yesterday for the first time since the close of the recent general assembly session. He declined to comment on all topics of the day. Asked what reaction he found to Governor Talmadge's attacks on the national administration he refused to be quoted and reporters got the same answer when they asked what he thought of the forthcoming vote on repeal of the prohibition law which is set for May 15.

Selt, Sam Johnston, Willie Jackson, Ed Smith and Nick Evans.

V. H. Tilton, an agent for the Alcohol Tax Unit, testified the garage was merely a blind for bootlegging operations and members of the ring were supplying Atlanta's entire South Side with corn liquor. He admitted, however, no whisky was found in the garage. The liquor cache was in the home of a negro across the street, he said.

Alcohol Tax Unit agents had been watching the filling station since last December, according to Tilton's testimony.

Georgians To Confer On Teachers' Salaries

WASHINGTON, May 1.—Georgia delegation members tomorrow will hold a conference with Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins in an effort to have relief funds allocated for paying salaries of teachers in the state school system made retroactive to February 1.

Arrangements for the conference were made today by Representative Carl Vinson, of Milledgeville, dean of the state group.

Previously the entire Georgia house delegation, joined by Senator Walter F. George and Senator Richard B. Russell Jr., had laid the school situation before Administrator Hopkins, asking that original instructions regarding use of the funds be modified. As yet no decision has been announced.

The instructions called for paying the teachers' beginning April 19, instead of the earlier date for which salaries are due.

Practically all members of the delegation will call on Mr. Hopkins in a body tomorrow to discuss the situation with him.

April Building Here Reveals Marked Gain

Atlanta building activity showed another marked gain in April, according to figures released yesterday by C. J. Bowen, building inspector.

April, 1935, totals exceeded those of March by a wide margin and more than doubled those of April, 1934. Total value of buildings for which permits were issued for April, 1935, was $254,526 as compared to $187,650 for March, 1935, and $99,041 for April, last year.

May was started right when a permit to erect a reinforced concrete and steel dairy for the Southern Dairies, Inc., at a cost of $35,000, was issued. The building will be at 593 Glen Iris drive, N. E., and will be built by J. M. Allen Company, Chattanooga.

Officers of Legion Meet Here May 28

American Legion service officers from seven states comprising the Atlanta area will hold a conference here May 28-29. It was announced yesterday by A. L. Henson, director of the state veterans' service bureau.

Representatives are to come from Florida, North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama, Louisiana and Tennessee. Henson will represent Georgia.

The purpose of the conference, he said, is to construe national legislation affecting veterans' compensation, hospitalization and insurance. The Legion's legislative program concerning compensation is to be drafted.

Henson said Erik T. Hines, director of the veterans' administration in Washington and his aides are expected. Watson Miller, national rehabilitation officer of the American Legion, is to preside over the meeting.

DIME CHAIN MAIL TRICK THREATENS ATLANTA DELUGE

Fear that Atlanta is about to be buried under a deluge of dime chain letters, similar to those which swept the western states, was expressed yesterday by J. W. Cole, regional postoffice inspector.

Under the scheme, a person receives a letter with six names at the top of it. The person receiving the letter is supposed to make five copies, striking the top name and substituting his own at the bottom. Then he sends 10 cents to the person whose name originally headed the list.

The total investment of the sender is 25 cents and the letter promises when his name has reached the top he will receive $1,825.50 in dimes.

Reports of two such letters were received yesterday morning by Inspector Cole, but by late afternoon the inspector's telephone was ringing every 15 minutes as some Atlantans called to find out whether the letters constitute a mail fraud.

WILKINSON TO SPEAK AT STUDENT BANQUET

Dr. J. C. Wilkinson, of Athens, president of the executive committee of the Georgia Baptist convention, will be the principal speaker when about 200 college students from institutions in and near Atlanta gather at the first Atlanta Baptist student banquet to be held at 6:30 tomorrow night at the social hall at the First Baptist church.

Edwin S. Preston will act as toastmaster. The organization, formed about two months ago for work among college students, will map a program for the next six months. The group of the evening division of the University System of Georgia and nurses of the Georgia Baptist hospital will furnish music.

PRISONER TRIES TWICE TO COMMIT SUICIDE

Police at Fulton tower took added precautions yesterday to prevent Harvey Grubbs, 41, serving a five-year sentence for larceny of an automobile, from making suicide attempts after he had twice slashed his throat.

Removal of all instruments with which Grubbs might injure himself was ordered.

The prisoner was found early yesterday morning in his cell with his throat slashed. He was treated at Grady hospital and then returned to the tower. Some time later he was discovered with the bandages torn off and his throat slashed open again. He is being kept under close watch.

ATLANTA, GA., MAY 2, 1935.

WHY NOT THE SOUTH?

Announcement of the L. & N. and the N. C. & St. L. railroads that all trains on the two lines will be air-conditioned in the near future means that most of the main trunk lines in the south will soon have this modern equipment on their through trains, the Seaboard having taken this progressive step a year ago, and the Southern following this summer.

This is a step in keeping with the trend toward improved transportation the world over—but it is not far enough if the railroads of this section expect to regain any material part of the patronage they have lost to the competition of the highways and the air.

The day of the 200,000-pound passenger coach and the lumbering 1,000,000-pound locomotive is over, as is the era of 30-mile-an-hour schedules.

It is an economic waste for the railroads to continue to haul coaches weighing 20,000 pounds to the average passenger car.

The western railroad systems are inaugurating as fast as they can get the equipment, modern streamlined trains that will carry 120 passengers with a total weight far less than that of the huge locomotives now hauling the overweight coaches still in use in the south.

The modernization of railroad transportation through the introduction of lightweight, Diesel-engined trains is past the experimental period. Its success has been undeniably demonstrated and the railroads of the world are fast changing over their equipment. In England there are more than 200 trains that daily travel at a scheduled speed of more than 60 miles per hour, which means that they must be able to develop 90 to 100 miles per hour speed in order to make up for the time lost in making stops.

The southern roads must get in line with these modern methods of transportation. They are getting back some of the business lost to the highways and the air, but they will lose what they have regained, and more, unless they go farther than they have.

The traveling public will patronize the methods of transportation giving the greatest speed and comfort at the most reasonable rates. It is not surprising that with the development of commodious and fast motorbuses and airplanes the railroads that continue to stick to antiquated equipment will lose out.

The west has pointed the way. Why not the south?

AN ENCOURAGING REPORT

The report of the sixth district Federal Reserve bank that construction activities are sharply gaining in this section reveals that the last major rampart blocking the way to recovery is being overcome. With practically every line of industry and business making rapid progress away from the low levels of the depression, the building trades and their associated industries have shown but little reaction to the recovery program. The result has been that a large per cent of the unemployed on the relief rolls have been construction workers unable to secure work.

Faced by this lack of response by one of the major industries, the federal administration has for several months concentrated its attention toward putting new life into it. The HOLC has helped and the FHA further revived building activities, as have also the loosened credits that have made available more money for construction projects.

Added to these governmental efforts, the increase in the volume of trade has made necessary new building programs both in industry and business.

No more significant development has marked the recovery program than the increase in activity on the part of the building trades, because of the extent to which they ramify the economic structure of the country.

NEW ATTACK ON LOTTERIES

The decision of the police committee to launch a new attack on those operating the number game lotteries in Atlanta promises a relief from conditions that have brought about for the first time the existence of a definite underworld in the city.

Chairman Bridges, of the committee, makes the statement that "with new equipment we can stop the facility with which these lottery men operate," and has accordingly asked that the police department be given a $5,000 appropriation for additional men to put on the lottery squad.

There is no more acute crime condition in the city than that surrounding the conduct of these lotteries and the police department should be given every assistance to enable it to successfully cope with the underworld leaders who are fattening their pockets with revenue from gullible and ignorant people, willing to endanger the welfare of the community in the hope of securing ill-gotten gains.

The police have already arrested dozens of the operators and solicitors of the various lotteries. Several times as many could have been brought before the courts if the drive against these underworld characters—most of whom have criminal records—had been intensified.

If the war against the lotteries is properly conducted they can be made so hazardous and unprofitable as to cause them to fall of their own weight. All that is necessary is for the police to make more cases and for the courts to extend the limit of the law to those brought before them. Under the law, possession of a supply of the lottery tickets is evidence to convict.

Chairman Bridges points out that the revenue from increased fines will more than cover the $5,000 appropriation asked for added equipment to be used in the intensified campaign against the racketeers and lottery operators.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

Television For All.

The first public high-definition television service in the world has started up in Berlin. It will be run by the German Broadcasting Company under the direct control of the postoffice. The pictures will be broadcast from the Funkturm Tower on a wave length of 6.7 meters, and the accompanying sound on 6.955 meters. One hundred and eighty lines will be used as against the 240 lines recommended by the British television committee. The rate of sending will be 25 pictures a second. To start with there will be three transmissions a week between 8:30 p. m. and 10 p. m., Berlin time.

In order to show the public what television means, the German postoffice is putting up receiving sets at various points in the capital. The first will be in the Reichspostmuseum. The programs will consist of short excerpts from films of a "Mirror of the Day" item. Important events will be filmed as they take place and will be transmitted in the evening. There will be at present no direct television as everything will be sent out through a medium of films, but it is already possible to speed up film development so that the interval between the event and the reception of the picture need not be more than 30 or 40 seconds, and really important events, such as Hitler's public appearance, will have only this short delay.

The German postoffice has been hard at work for a long time on high definition television, and is practically ready to extend the service over a very considerable area, comprising Hanover, Brunswick, Göttingen, Magdeburg and Erfurt. This will be possible without a great deal of expense because the Berlin transmissions will be receivable on the Brocken Peak of the Harz mountains, which are about 140 miles from the capital. From this lofty spot the pictures will be transmitted by radio waves over a large area included within a radius of 75 to 100 miles from the Brocken.

Old Paris Vanishing.

Scarce a week goes by but some link with old Paris snaps. Now it is the Bal Bullier. To remember the Bal Bullier is to remember a Paris of the past, a Paris of the past that is disappearing. The Bal Bullier, that famous quarter of the Latin quarter, its passing is a sad event. Really it is only the shade of the old place that has come once more into public notice, for it is some years since it ceased to be a dance hall. In recent times the building was put up to auction this week—and had to be withdrawn—has been used principally for communist meetings. The love songs of the students and the grisettes had given way to the "internationale."

Many famous literatures and poets were born in the Bal Bullier. In the days of their youth, Alfred de Musset and Villiers de l'Isle Adam were among them. It was formerly known as the Casino de l'Isle Adam. The Casino de l'Isle Adam, immortalized by Dumas fils as Marguerite Gautier, "La Dame aux Camélias." The last attempt to revive the former building of the Bal Bullier was in 1921. But, like many other old-time dancing halls of Paris, it was proved to have had its day. And now there is no one to make a bid for the building so packed with souvenirs of the joyous care-free Latin quarter of bygone days.

FAST LIVING AND PREMATURE OLD AGE.

It is logical to think that people who live "fast" should expect to die young. Not all authorities agree that heredity (defective material in arteries), syphilis, alcoholism, overeating, chronic nervousness, and other factors such as typhoid fever, pneumonia and influenza are causes of arteriosclerosis. There is a difference of opinion as to whether or not these factors are causes of arteriosclerosis. There is no one to make a bid for the building so packed with souvenirs of the joyous care-free Latin quarter of bygone days.

News Behind the News

By Paul Mallon

INSPIRATION

WASHINGTON, May 1.—What President Roosevelt told Chairman McSwain, of the house military committee, about published secret war testimony was plenty. But what he said privately at a White House dinner the night before was even more. Apparently the president has not been so greatly aroused about anything in a long time.

The affair has set roots. The McSwain forces and the War Department general staff have been more or less openly at odds for a long time. It may not be true that Mr. McSwain let the matter out intentionally, but you can never make Chief of Staff MacArthur believe anything different. These two misunderstand each other with deep and relentless feeling.

It was General MacArthur, as well as the State Department officials, who helped to inspire Mr. Roosevelt's wrath, if it really needed any inspiration.

DISCUSSION What made MacArthur red-headed was that the published secret told the world the weakest points of American defense. In fact, it disclosed how any foreign power could beat us about attacking the United States.

For instance, it contained a list of vital areas of attack, mentioning oil refineries, pipe lines and water routes. Even more, it told how the attack could be instituted easily if any foreign country would secretly send over a couple of freight-fueling ships and establish temporary air bases at points near by. Then the bombers could come along later in a hurry, pick up fuel, and go to work, before we knew what they were about.

Perhaps some of this has been figured out by some of the foreign powers. But if they did not know it before, they do now.

EMBARRASSMENT These roots were neatly covered up in the public handling of the matter. The army officer whose secret testimony was disclosed was induced to make a statement that his testimony represented only his personal opinions. This hardly helped to inspire foreign military men or anyone else. All it did was to lay the diplomatic dust which was being kicked up, mainly from Canada.

What made the Canadian angle so embarrassing for the State Department is that the non-militarized frontier between this country and Canada is one of the diplomatic pets of the department. We are forever calling the attention of other nations to it as an ideal for them to follow. To have the army make it appear that we were contemplating secret air bases there, was to say the least, exasperating.

The worst of it was that the Canadian government requested an explanation almost at the very moment that Undersecretary of State Phillips was unveiling a tablet here commemorating the signing, 148 years ago, of the Rush-Bagot agreement, whereby the United States and Canada agreed never to militarize their frontiers.

AFTERMATH The fundamental fact of the situation is that Canada and every other nation secretly makes military preparations to meet any eventuality. Everyone knows that military men have to keep in mind the possibility that treaties may be broken. In this instance, any other nation might well use Canada as a base for air attack, just as Germany used Belgium (in violation of the treaty) for the attack on France. At least, this possibility must be considered.

For that reason, the incident may not have serious consequences. You cannot blame every war office in the world for laughing.

WEAKNESS A republican presidential possibility was traveling in the midwest a few days ago with a New Dealer. They were brought together by the drought relief business, not friendship.

Said the republican, by way of conversation: "We republicans have one political issue on you New Dealers which you will never be able to meet."

"What's that?" asked the New Dealer politely.

"The tariff," responded the republican. "You democrats went up and down this land in 1932 denouncing the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill and to this day you have not repealed the law or instituted any effective program to replace it."

The New Dealer had to admit off-the-record that the republican might be nearly right about that.

TRADE Evidence has been accumulating lately that the New Dealer has again reneged its faith in economic nationalism. The money policy, the price policy, the NRA, all leaned toward tariff protection theories in the beginning. This feeling waned somewhat in the second year of the administration while Messrs. Hull and Peek played around with the possibilities of restoring world trade. It is no secret that their playful explorations have not been satisfactory even to themselves.

The president has been reading a book which advocates the establishment of a national pool for international trade (like Russia's amort). No one believes he is going that far, but it is obvious that the foreign trade issue is again drawing the highest attention. A new approach is being studied.

The best authorities believe nothing important can or will be attempted until an effort is made to stabilize world currencies.

INGENUITY William Bullitt, ambassador to Russia, has a secret. While he has not been able to do much debt to other business with the Russians, he has managed to work out a business arrangement to take care of the auto situation at the embassy.

Rules prevented him from buying autos. There was nothing to prevent him from renting some, although rentals, in the long run, would cost far more than the price of the cars.

So Bullitt did what he could. He arranged for an agency, arranging to rent cars and apply the rental on the purchase price. The result is he now owns a needed fleet of motor cars.

The Greatest Force Is Helpless When It Tries To Overcome Opinions

By Robert Quillen

In the old pre-auto days, when few country people traveled beyond the county seat, a city youth who visited his country cousin was cordially hated.

His cleanliness and good clothes and easy manners were an unparadise offense. And though the country boys made fun of him and called him a dude and assured one another that a dozen such sissies wouldn't make a "real man," this was merely a pathetic self-defense.

They hated him because he was superior to them, and knew it, and knew that they knew it.

If you enjoy making amusing experiments with human nature, find an arrogant old-school aristocrat, who feels superior to ordinary men, and ask him to explain what particular qualities he has that make him superior. The question will anger him, as such questions always anger people who are required to defend a pet belief or faith that is not supported by evidence.

But his rage is trivial compared to that of a man who is regarded as an inferior, and treated as such, despite his intelligence, learning and achievements.

Suppose this inferior man, made revengeful by his helpless rage and Fate's injustice, resolves to attack the superior one and "take him down a peg or two."

Suppose the aristocrat is ruined and made a pauper. Does the inferior man have his revenge? None whatever. For the superior, impoverished and in rags, still feels superior. He can't help it.

And the inferior one, who may not be inferior in fact, is filled with a hate that surpasses anything that the superior man can feel.

That is the evil thing that makes Japan a menace to the world's peace.

The Chinese, however, much abused and humiliated, still regard the Japanese as upstart barbarians.

The white man, regardless of Japanese progress and power, still regards himself as a superior.

And the Japanese, proud, sensitive, ambitious and able, are enraged by that injustice and determined to fight and conquer until other races acknowledge them as equals.

They will fail, of course. Though they conquer the earth, the white man will still feel superior. Races and men win respect by deserving it, but never yet has force overcome an idea.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Dempsey 'Fronting.'

NEW YORK, May 1.—Jack Dempsey is currently engaged in a line of work known in the sport industry as "fronting." That is to say, Mr. Dempsey has his name up in electric lights over a big, new restaurant just across the street from Madison Square Garden and is, for public purposes, the manager and proprietor of the place.

The name and fame of Mr. Dempsey and the freedom of the sport writer to name names in his copy have created much free publicity for this restaurant. As a restaurant man, however, Mr. Dempsey starts cold, never having fired a cook or stretched a kettle of soup with another dipper of tap water under professional conditions in all his life. About all the technical knowledge that he has is that he is the son of a house, called his name to his side as he lay on his deathbed and took leave of them with a solemn admonition to slice the ham thin, boys.

Nevertheless, the restaurant known as Jack Dempsey's place seems to be doing somewhat better than all right.

Curiosity The reason I mention the subject is that it arouses an old curiosity, never satisfactorily answered in the course of some years in the newspaper business, as to why it is that we lavish free advertising on certain groups of people, even when we know they are imposing on us, and strictly exclude from our news columns the particular mention of responsible, permanent business houses such as the department stores which spend millions of dollars with the newspapers. Mr. Dempsey has never laid so much as a dime on the counter of an advertising office.

Yet Dempsey and hundreds of other individuals and soulless corporations having stockholders can command space next to reading matter almost at will.

In the particular case of Mr. Dempsey, the restaurant, an advantage is conferred over the proprietors of other restaurants who have been dealing them off the arm for many years, some of whose customers nowadays are being directed to Dempsey's place by this publicity. The customers wish to shake the hand of the Gen. Tunney down for the court of 14, and talk with him personally and come away with his autograph on the menu.

I can hardly be argued that Dempsey is a sporting figure and thus a subject of sport news in his new environment, because he hasn't had a fight since 1927 and never will fight again. In fact, not only Dempsey but many another figure of the type called the celebrity has frankly sold out as a publicity-seeker to the editors of various kinds, from real estate developments to patent medicines. They know they can create publicity, sometimes merely by their presence, so they hire out to promoters, exploiters, and the papers permit their columns to be used to advertise free the business projects of those who engage them.

Sneak Ads On the other hand, it is a rule of the newspaper business not inflexible but general, to avoid the particular mention of stores and trade-marked commodities which advertise widely. Such mention is known as the sneak ad and is avoided unless it is justified by some actual news.

It is enough, to be sure, because it would not do to have the news columns salted with sneak ads disguised as news, but if it is fair for the advertisers who support the papers to do this, it should be fair for the prizefighter, for example, who hasn't made any news for years when he associates himself with a restaurant, a haberdashery, a cigar store or a line of sporting goods. I have seen frequent mention of Mr. Dempsey's restaurant, but none of it except, perhaps, the ceremonies attending the laying of the cornerstone, which were attended by the mayor, would have been considered worth while as news if it had related to any other restaurant.

For that matter, even in their sporting environment, these champions who make this news, as we call it, are business men as certainly as any department store in the country, and they buy their advertising at the rate of so much for so many lines. Dempsey was no amateur in either Philadelphia or Chicago and is neither an amateur nor a sporting figure today. Yet for years to come writers who are getting into their memoirs will recall his business transactions in those two cities on days when there is nothing more alive with which to fill a column.

Continues I do not expect to see the day, however, when a reporter, having nothing better to do, will himself pick up a piece and get it into print recalling the stirring scene of a Christmas rush or the memorable white goods sale at the leading department store some year back.

I hope I am not putting ideas into the heads of advertisers who are in the habit of paying cash for their advertising. Dempsey never will pay for his, and it would be inconvenient to place the advertisers on the same footing with him. Perhaps it is something which I should have mentioned at all but should have just continued to wonder about privately.

Confidence in the AAA Expressed by Georgian In Praising Results

Editor Constitution: All of us may not fully agree with all the AAA is doing, but we do not believe any one can show that it is not greatly benefited by what it has done. Something has improved the cotton farmers and all other farmers' condition and that is a fact in spite of its enemies the AAA is largely, if not entirely, responsible for it.

It is to be hoped, and I believe the nation's farmers will gradually be worked out and that it will further benefit agriculture and thus help all business, for a successful agriculture is necessary for improvement in all other lines.

I believe the intention of the AAA is to help agriculture and through agriculture to help all other lines and that an understanding of it is its entirety will make friends for it, who will wisely help it to see and correct its errors and more perfectly bring to pass its true intent, which I am sure is to help all and hurt none.

M'SWAIN REGRETS SECRET PRINTING

Takes Full Blame for Canada Incident, Agrees With F. D. R.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(AP)—Assuming "full responsibility for this unfortunate incident," Chairman McSwain today told President Roosevelt of his great "regret" at the house military committee's disclosure of secret army testimony which stirred international concern.

Replying to the president's own stern rebuke and disavowal of alleged war plans touching friendly nations, the white-haired South Carolinian wrote the White House:

"I greatly regret the unfortunate inclusion of the executive testimony along with other testimony when it was sent to the public printer. . . . I can assure you that no secret had been again occur because so long as I shall preside as chairman, any testimony that may be given in executive session and that may affect our foreign or diplomatic relations will not be taken down stenographically. . . .

Full Responsibility.

"I assume full responsibility for this unfortunate incident and renew my pledge to co-operate to the fullest in the preservation of friendly relations with all nations and at the same time in maintaining a safe and sane national defense, as all nations must do."

McSwain, who celebrated his 60th birthday today, earlier had read aloud to newsmen the unusual presidential censure of the publication of confidential testimony by army officers and accepted "full blame." But he noted in his letter to Mr. Roosevelt that in its duty of providing for the national defense "congress must have the frank and candid opinions of all who have information pertinent to the inquiry."

A veteran himself of World War service, McSwain told Mr. Roosevelt that "especially do I regret any embarrassment that may come to the officers, General Andrews and General Kilbourne, efficient patriotic and honorable officers, and I sincerely trust that their statements may never operate to their prejudice."

Background.

Brigadier General F. M. Andrews, chief of the general headquarters air force, gave testimony on the need of seizing nearby British and French isles in event of an emergency. Brigadier General Charles E. Kilbourne testified regarding a "camouflaged" air base near the unfortified Canadian border.

In his bluntly worded communication, Mr. Roosevelt had advised McSwain he would, if necessary, censor all army and navy testimony in the future.

Not even stopping to remove semi-formal attire he had worn at an official function, the drawing, amiable South Carolinian sped to his office today to open the large manila envelope bearing the two-page Roosevelt rebuke.

After absolving his committee of any responsibility, he termed "unfortunate and regrettable" the slip by which words of Brigadier General Charles E. Kilbourne and Brigadier General F. M. Andrews, speaking behind closed doors on a bill to create a system of powerful defense air bases around the nation, were included in a public committee record.

In terse phrases, the president had emphasized that the general voiced the views neither of the administration, the commander-in-chief nor the United States government. McSwain agreed in Mr. Roosevelt's statement of friendship for Canada.

Dorsey Takes Oath as Judge For New Superior Court

Judge Hugh M. Dorsey, himself a former governor, is shown above as he was administered the oath of office as judge of the newly-created sixth division of the Fulton superior court by Governor Talmadge, an old friend who twice supported Judge Dorsey in his two successful races for the governorship nearly 20 years ago.

Judge Hugh M. Dorsey, himself a former governor, yesterday was appointed and sworn in as judge of the newly created sixth division of the Fulton superior court by Governor Talmadge, to whom Judge Dorsey gave his first public office, that of solicitor of the city court of Atlanta nearly 20 years ago.

The ceremony at the capitol, which was witnessed by the five other judges of the Fulton superior court, was more like a reunion than anything. Governor Talmadge supported Judge Dorsey in both his races as governor in 1916 and 1918 and Judge Dorsey supported the present chief executive in his two races in 1932 and 1934.

The sixth division of the Fulton superior court was created by the general assembly in its recent regular session by adoption of an act which abolished the old city court, over which Judge Dorsey presided. All business on the city court docket has been transferred to the superior court for disposition.

Judge Dorsey is one of the best known public men in Georgia. He was

ARTHUR S. CALLEY DIES ON TRIP TO ELBERTON

Arthur Sherman Calley, 51, representative of the Cable Piano Company of Atlanta, who for a number of years has been prominently identified with the music business here, died unexpectedly early yesterday morning at Elberton, where he was on business.

Mr. Calley at one time was a partner in the Carder Piano Company here, and later was sales manager of the Ludden-Bates Piano Company. He had been connected with the Cable company for the last three years.

Friends stated last night they believed his death was caused by asthma, from which he had been suffering recently. He retired in good health early Tuesday night but later summoned a doctor and died within a few minutes.

He is survived by his wife; his father, Joseph S. Calley, of Boston, and two brothers, Carlton H. Calley, of Mountain Lake, N. Y., and Joseph W. Calley, of Boston. His residence in Atlanta was a local hotel.

The body was sent to Atlanta for funeral services and burial, which will be announced by Sam R. Greenberg & Company.

COUNTY WELFARE BODY MAPS BROAD PROGRAM

Chairman Harrington Tells Comprehensive Objectives of Relief Group.

Objectives of the Fulton county board of public welfare were made known yesterday with the announcement by Chairman W. Eugene Harrington of a definite and comprehensive program worked out by the board. The plan outlined provides for a coming process for the proper handling of mental defectives and tubercular cases, concentrated effort for child welfare, rigid supervision of tax money appropriations for private agencies and an equitable distribution of financial responsibility for all relief among the various municipalities in the county.

Harrington said the board hopes to bring about the removal from institutions of all persons who can be properly cared for in homes. Among other plans is one to provide, by co-operation with the county board of education, full educational facilities for all children in county institutions.

An immediate survey is planned to ascertain the tubercular cases in the city and county needing institutional care and provide proper provision for them at Battle Hill or such additional quarters as may be required.

The board is also planning the establishment of a school for training social service workers, the training to be free to persons selected by the board. Harrington said the board hopes to build up an army of local highly trained workers in the various fields.

Harrington announced the appointment of the following standing committees of the board for the year: Personnel and administrative: Hugh C. Couch, chairman; Mayor James L. Key, Frank H. Neely, J. Sid Tiller, Finance and purchases: W. E. Mitchell, chairman; Hugh C. Couch, Dr. C. R. Adams.

Welfare services: Frank H. Neely, chairman; W. E. Mitchell, J. Sid Tiller, George L. Simons, County institutions: Dr. Adams, chairman; Mr. Couch, Edwin F. Johnson.

Work relief: Mr. Johnson, chairman; Mr. Simons and Mr. Neely.

New Store of Disease Remedies Found in Human Mothers' Bodies

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE. PHILADELPHIA, May 1.—(AP)—Concentrated in the bodies of human mothers, a new store of remedies against some of the major diseases has been discovered at Harvard University.

The remedies come from substances evidently concentrated by the mother's body as a protection for her child. They include protectives for measles, scarlet fever, diphtheria and infantile paralysis.

They were described by Charles F. McKhann, professor of pediatrics and communicable diseases at Harvard to the American College of Physicians meeting here.

These substances are called antibodies, the name given by the medical profession to a great number of chemicals of unusual nature which living bodies form for their own protection against disease.

Dr. McKhann said the antibodies found so concentrated in mothers probably had their source in her own exposure at some time in her life to the ill for which they were the protection. They are extracted from the placenta.

Other physicians said it was astonishing that the medical records do not indicate much if any search previously in this human source for potent resistors to disease. In the animal kingdom use of the placenta is virtually universal.

That fact has been well known. The reason may be that animal instinct realized the protective values. Dr. McKhann said that the measles extract had been given to 1,258 persons exposed to this malady and that it "proved highly effective in preventing the disease, if else was followed by a much milder form of measles."

Some mild, unpleasant reactions have been found in the extracts, it is believed they will be eliminated by improved methods of preparation.

The cause of chronic arthritis and of acute "inflammatory rheumatism" was traced to probable lack of vitamin C in experiments on guinea pigs, reported by James F. Rhinehart, M. D., assistant professor of pathology, of the University of California.

Vitamin C is most abundant in green leafy vegetables and fresh fruits. The guinea pigs developed ill similar to both the human forms when their vitamin C was low. They resisted either disease when well fed with the vitamin.

Belgrano To Direct Bonus Campaign

INDIANAPOLIS, May 1.—(AP)—Frank N. Belgrano Jr., national commander of the American Legion, headed tonight for Washington to press the veterans' demand for immediate cash payment of the bonus.

He abandoned an address prepared for the annual legion aerial roundup and set out to take personal charge of the bonus campaign. The national executive committee will meet here tomorrow and Friday in his absence.

NLRB HEARS APPEAL FROM ATLANTA BOARD

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(AP)—The National Labor Relations Board heard today the appeal of W. S. Dickey Clay Manufacturing Company, Birmingham, from a finding of the Atlanta Regional Board that it violated the recovery act by interfering with self-organization of employees.

The company was accused of refusing employment to three union leaders. Border Burr, attorney for the company, told the board today these men were not reinstated after a shut-down due to inefficiency.

The Beautiful Derelict

BY CAROLYN WELLS

WHAT WAS GONE BEFORE.

Fleming Stone, famous detective, is on a New York-New York steamer. A drifting yacht is sighted in a fog the day after an America's cup race. With the captain's permission, Stone goes with a lifeboat crew and discovers two dead men aboard the beautiful craft, the Mad Anthony. Medical testimony indicates that Barry was killed soon after the start by a blow on the head and that Van Zandt died from stomach ailers. Barry was the son of Daniel Webster Wayne and passed his summers with him and Dan's brother, Patrick Henry Wayne, on their estate at Sand Hill, Nantucket Island. Called State Attorney Democrat, welcome Stone's offer to work on the mysterious case. Mrs. Vera Zandt frankly tells Stone she didn't love her husband. She and the Hollis are the Wayne guests. A laboratory report shows that metallic sodium, not stomach ailers, killed Van Zandt. In the false bottom of a box in Van's room Stone finds the name and address of a New York woman. Jane says Barry flirted with Vera to make her jealous, thinking she did not love him as much as he loved her. This angered Van Zandt. Questioned, Pat said Mrs. Van Zandt, after searching Pat's rooms with Inspector Cox, found the Hollis' key in her pocket. Dan to look over his quarters.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT XVII.

"As you see, now, these old things, Mr. Dan and Mr. Pat brought from the heathen places. The best and most valuable ones they kept in Barry's museum, as they called it. Let me look at that gold and silver piece, will you?"

Ming took the thing from its shelf and handed it to him. It was an ornament of some sort, and was shaped a little like a spoon with a long handle. The bowl of the spoon, set on like a ladle, was about the size of a salt-pan. The handle was hexagonal and formed of alternating sections of gold and silver.

"I don't know what that is," Ming said.

"Nobody ever told me."

"It is a hairpin," Stone explained.

"It is a sort of worn by natives of the Liu-Kiu islands, a small archipelago, near Formosa. Who gave you this?"

"It was in the lot that they all said didn't belong in the museum, and that I could have them. You say this is a hairpin? It doesn't look like one."

"Dan changed to come by at that moment."

"Just how is this thing used, Mr. Wayne?" Stone asked him.

"I'm not sure, Pat will know. Let's ask him."

"Dan led the way to Pat's rooms in the opposite corner of the house."

"They found him sitting by a window, a newspaper on the floor beside him and a look of utter sadness on his face as he looked up to greet them."

"Oh, come in," he said, cordially, as he rose. "Can I do anything for you, Mr. Stone?"

"We want to know," his brother said, "how these hairpins work. This is a hairpin, isn't it?"

"Yes," Pat said. "They do look awkward, don't they? And I don't believe I know just how they are used."

THE ENGLISH IN VIRGINIA.

IV—Adventures of Smith.

For the most part, the Indians of Virginia were friendly to the white settlers, but small troubles arose from time to time. These troubles were as much the fault of the English as of the Indians.

One day, John Smith left a group of his friends (who had gone with him up the valley of the James river) and did a little exploring with a single

Indian guide. Suddenly he heard a great shouting, and caught sight of about 200 Indians. He drew his pistol, and used his guide "as a shield."

An arrow grazed his thigh, but did not give much hurt. He fired his pistol, and then loaded it again.

At least two Indians were shot down, but Smith felt that the best thing to do was to surrender. He threw down his weapons, and the Indians came to bind him. He feared that he would be put to death.

The Indians who captured Smith were known as "Powhatans," a name which appears to have meant "Falling Waters." (There were falls in the James river.) The leading chief

ALEX F. MORGAN DIES ON WASHINGTON VISIT

Southern Railway Official
Succumbs to Sudden Attack;
Funeral in Nashville.

Alex F. Morgan, for 35 years superintendent of car records of the Southern Railway and uncle of Morgan Blake, sports editor of the Atlanta Journal, died unexpectedly yesterday afternoon in Washington, D. C., where he was visiting friends.

Mr. Morgan, who for the past five years has made his home with Mr. Blake, at 179 Westminister drive, N. E., was transferred from the Washington offices of the railway company when the majority of the employees were transferred here about five years ago.

In addition to Mr. Blake, he is survived by Mrs. George E. Blake, his sister, and a niece, Miss Gladys Blake, both of Atlanta, and two nieces and two nephews in Washington.

The body will be sent to Nashville for funeral services and burial.

METZ SEES DANGER IN PENSION SYSTEM

Charles J. Metz, city auditor, yesterday filed a special report with Mayor Key setting out that Atlanta's three pension systems will eventually bankrupt the city unless changed.

He recommended that the city handle the pension system through some reliable insurance firm, and relieve the city of present charter provisions which make it mandatory that deficiencies in pension funds be paid out of the municipal treasury.

Advertising Is Held Recovery Necessity

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(UP)—One of the nation's chief hopes in restoring consumer confidence and subsequent economic peace lies in the judicious use of advertising. Roy S. Dursline, of New York, told delegates to the United States Chamber of Commerce annual convention today.

Attacking the college professors and theorists participating in the New Deal and those who ridicule and assail the value of advertising in the country's economic life, Dursline said: "Heavy industry is not going to whip up to 55,000,000 horsepower until it feels the pull of consumer confidence. And when more and more manufacturers advertising consumers' products can lose their Washington-made jitters and swing into their stride as so many are doing today to their increasing profit, then shall we have found that the pump has been primed."

The priming of the pump thus would be "doubtless" the "most potent" of pouring oil on troubled waters," he explained, "but by using advertising for what it is today—the spark plug to start the engine."

S. C. HOUSE REFUSES TO ASSAIL TALMADGE

COLUMBIA, S. C., May 1.—(AP)—The South Carolina house of representatives today refused to pass a resolution condemning "the destructive criticism" of the Roosevelt administration by Governor Eugene Talmadge, of Georgia.

The house voted 38 to 25 to continue the resolution, which, in effect, kills it. The action followed brief debate in which Representative Z. H. Suher, of Newberry, said his aim was to "express the opinion of this house against any third party."

Representative W. F. Ponder, of Spartanburg, said: "I do not think we ought to interfere in a quarrel between the governor of another state and the president, nor do I think we ought to criticize a man for expressing his opinion."

His argument prevailed, and the motion to continue by Representative M. M. Johnson, of Kershaw, was carried. The house advanced to third reading today a bill to provide for the sterilization of hereditary mental defectives.

The measure was defended by its author, Representative R. G. Blackburn, a Marion physician, and was vigorously opposed by Representatives Ira Koger, of Charleston, and C. Lester Thomas, of Hampton.

The question of sustaining or overruling Governor Olin D. Johnston's veto of a Cooper river bridge purchase proposal was deferred until tomorrow.

The senate made a special order of an education measure to extend the school term and raise teacher pay.

REFERENDUM IS VOTED ON REPEAL IN TEXAS

AUSTIN, Texas, May 1.—The Texas legislature today overwhelmingly voted to submit repeal of state-wide prohibition to popular action. The senate vote was 29 to 1, while the house approved it, 116 to 19.

SCHOOL MACHINERY ACT DEBATED IN N. C. HOUSE

RALEIGH, N. C., May 1.—(AP)—Legislation of a varied sort occupied the senate today as the revenue conference report awaited second reading consideration and the house debated the biennial school machinery act, after refusing to concur in senate amendments to the biennial appropriations measure, forcing it back to conference.

Consideration of the tax measure in the upper division was delayed as the first one senator and then another secured out of order passage of some bill.

NEW MORATORIUM IS SOUGHT IN FLORIDA

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., May 1.—(AP)—The legislature tonight passed to a conference committee the task of constructing a public debt moratorium bill that will not affect federal loans to Florida.

Other legislative developments of the day included:

Passage by a big majority in the house a bill to provide free textbooks in all 12 grades of public schools. They are now supplied to the first six grades. The senate had previously passed the textbook bill and house concurrence marked the first Shultz suggestion approved by both chambers.

State Income Gains On Preceding Years

An increase in the total income of the state of Georgia of approximately $200,000 during the first four months of the year was reported to Governor Talmadge yesterday by State Auditor Tom Wisdom.

The total collections this year have been $9,240,228. Last year at this time the total was $8,717,779 while during the first four months of 1933 there was only $7,208,183 collected. This year's revenue was divided, $2,743,012 going into the general fund and $6,504,216 into special allocated funds.

The principal gains this year were $300,000 in income taxes and $320,000 in levies on gasoline and kerosene.

ALLEGED LIQUOR CAR CAUGHT AFTER CHASE

The arrest yesterday by Chief W. O. Parker, of the DeKalb county police, of Willie Price, 24, of 772 Hunter street, S. E., and R. W. Purdie, 28, of Dawsonville, and the seizure of 135 gallons of liquor from the car they were said to have been driving marked the 188th arrest by DeKalb police in April for state offenses, Parker declared.

The arrests followed a five-mile chase marked by several narrow escapes from disaster as the speeding cars careened dangerously.

Cadets in the R. O. T. C. units of Russell and Fulton high schools will stage the first annual R. O. T. C. day exercises Friday at the Russell high school athletic field. Drilling will begin at noon.

The afternoon's program will include the presentation of sponsors, regimental parade, company drill between picked companies from each school. Seniors of Fulton high school will present a silent drill, while the seniors of Russell high school will offer a fancy drill. The schools are competing for the company banner which was won last year by a Russell high cadet.

Flower Show To Attract Exhibits From All Over State To Atlanta

Arrangements were being completed yesterday for the second annual Atlanta Flower Show, an exposition which will be participated in not only by all members of the Atlanta garden clubs but by horticulturists from all all over the state. The show will be held next Wednesday and Thursday, May 9 and 10, at 671 Peachtree street.

A number of professional flower growers as well as amateurs will have exhibits at the show which leaders hope will be the finest of its kind ever given in Georgia. The display will be sponsored directly by the Peachtree Garden Club, aided by the Cherokee Garden Club, the Habersham Garden Club, the Iris Garden Club, the Lullwater Garden Club, the Mimosa Garden Club, the Perennial Garden Club, the Piedmont Garden Club, the Primrose Garden Club and the Rose Garden Club.

The general chairman of the show will be Mrs. James S. Floyd, who will have Mrs. F. Phinizy Calhoun and Mrs. Jesse Draper as co-chairmen, with Mrs. C. C. Case acting as secretary.

Doors Open at 2 O'Clock.

The doors will be opened to the public at 2 o'clock next Wednesday afternoon and remain open until 10 o'clock Wednesday night. The show will be opened the following day in the morning, afternoon and evening.

The show will be divided into seven sections, with 23 different classes. Section I will be devoted to inter-club competition. Class A, Miss Mary Haverly, chairman, limited to the 10 co-operating clubs, will be a section of a spring garden. Class B, Mrs. E. W. Cuthbert, chairman, will be devoted to flower shops, and limited to the following clubs: Cherokee, Habersham, Iris, Lullwater, Mimosa, Peachtree, Perennial, Piedmont, Primrose, Rose and Planters.

Section 2, an inter-club competition by invitation, contains Class C, Mrs. Lawson Thornton, chairman, and will be devoted to luncheon tables. Also four classes for flower arrangements, which are open to member clubs of Garden Club of Georgia located in Fulton and DeKalb counties. These classes are Class D, Mrs. Norman Coolidge, chairman; Class E, Mrs. George Pratt, chairman; Class F, Mrs. Lindsay Thompson, chairman, and Class G, Mrs. E. V. Carter, chairman.

Section III, for flower arrangements, is open to individual members of clubs belonging to Garden Club of Georgia located in Fulton and DeKalb counties. Only one entry from each club is allowed in each class. The chairman of the classes in this section are: Class H, Mrs. L. F. Montgomery; Class I, Mrs. Hal F. Hentz; Class K, Mrs. Arthur Clarke; Class L, Mrs. Alex G. King Jr.; Class M, Mrs. DeWitt Norton.

Section IV is open to amateurs and professionals. It contains Class N, Mrs. Emory Cooke, chairman, for shadow boxes and still life picture, and Class O, Mrs. L. G. Daingerfield, chairman, for miniature models.

Section V, for flower arrangements, is open to all member clubs of the Garden Club of Georgia located outside of Fulton and DeKalb counties.

Section VI contains Class P, Mrs. William P. Hill, chairman.

Section VII contains Class Q, Mrs. L. G. Fulton, chairman. This class is for flower arrangements from gardens of public schools of Greater Atlanta.

Section VIII for specimen blooms is open to any amateur gardener in Georgia. The general chairman for this group are Mrs. Arthur Tufts, Miss Edith Harrison and Mrs. Valeria Manley. This section is in four divisions. The first division is devoted to roses and contains Class R for single specimens. The second section is for iris and contains Class T and Class U. The third division is for peonies. This division is made up by two classes, W for a collection of peonies and X for a single specimen. The last division includes any flowers from bulbs, corms and tubers. Class Y for single specimens is in this group.

A complete schedule for the show may be secured at the Garden Center, Rich's, Inc., or by writing to Mrs. C. C. Case, secretary of the show, 2624 Habersham road.

Prosecution Reopens On Scottsboro Nine

SCOTTSBORO, Ala., May 1.—(UP) Prosecution of the Scottsboro assault cases began all over again today.

Mrs. Victoria Price came here from her home in Huntsville and swore out warrants charging nine negroes with criminally assaulting her aboard a freight train near here on March 25, 1931.

During the four years since the alleged attack the cases have gone three Alabama court trials, resulting in conviction and death sentences which have been reversed twice by the United States supreme court and once by the Alabama trial judge.

The latest supreme court decision threw the cases right back where they started, ruling in effect that the original indictments were invalid because negroes were systematically barred from grand jury service in this county.

CODE VIOLATIONS LAID TO NEGRO MORTICIANS

Arthur W. Harris, field representative of the Funeral Service Industry Code Authority, has been ordered to Atlanta to investigate violations of the NRA code for undertakers. Harris has made a study of code violators and unethical practices among negro undertakers in nine states and in the District of Columbia, he said yesterday.

He is being sent throughout the southern states to study existing conditions among colored undertakers by Harry Gilligan, executive secretary of the code authority. The funeral service industry code is the only one of 700 which directly recognizes the negro, he said.

Present violations of the code made by some negro undertakers of Atlanta make it impossible for a few local undertakers who obey the code to make a living, Harris said. It is now the practice of some local undertakers to keep men at the city hospitals to solicit bodies rather than being notified of cases by the families of the dead, he stated.

46 Years Old

I. H. Gantt, state manager for the Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Company, was honored yesterday on his forty-sixth birthday by the Atlanta members of his agency.

Mr. Gantt's office was beautifully decorated by many roses, peonies, iris and hydrangea received by him as expressions of good wishes by his many friends and fellow workers. A luncheon was given in his honor, which was attended by members of the local agency only.

Mr. Gantt has been connected with the Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Company since September of 1912. The home office of the Jefferson Standard is in Greensboro, N. C. Before coming to Atlanta in February, 1931, he was manager of the company's Asheville, N. C., agency. Under Mr. Gantt's able supervision the Georgia agency has made much progress during the past four years. The agency made the best record during 1934 that has been made in many years. Not only was a large increase shown in paid-for business, but the highest renewal rate of any agency of the company and as a result was awarded a conservation trophy.

Mr. Gantt, on his forty-sixth birthday, was optimistic for 1935. Each month thus far the agency has shown an increase over the same month last year and Mr. Gantt expresses the opinion that 1935 will be a splendid year for insurance companies and other businesses as well.

In Georgia's FIELDS and STREAMS

To the man who invented the duffie bag I propose a monument. In the army they are barracks bags. In civilian life they find a counterpart in laundry bags, but there is nothing like the genuine article for an extended field trip. You start packing and put in all the bulky clothing that goes with a long trip. Then you shake and sling the bag and otherwise mistreat it. You find that this reduces the bulk of your baggage by half. You begin to toss in sheath axes, knives, flashlights, extra batteries, moccasins, traps, dissecting kits, bottles of formalin (carefully strapped with adhesive across the top), empty specimen bottles (packed inside with fragile articles), and finally the toothbrush. You either do that or get to the destination where you embark on the rough going and find that you have left it at home, whereupon you hunt up a 10-cent store and purchase another one. Razors are taboo, but the barber whom you choose on your return; at least use your dissecting scissors to trim the foliage. To return to the duffie bag, however, you fill it to overflowing and swat it again. The contents spring miraculously. You grasp the ropes that close it and give them a mighty heave. You end closes, you sling a reef in the rope, sit on the bag and wipe your face with the red cloth you meant to put in the bag. It is cheap percale, which you expect to tear into strips and tie on grass, shrubs, or fences to mark the location of your traps. The dye washes out of the cloth and your face assumes a bluish-rose tint while you swear one brief swear and try to stuff the red cloth in through the tied rope. Finally you write the bag, the contents begin to bulge, you thrust the cloth in and hastily try to conquer the thing before it spreads its contents all over the floor. Eventually the victory is not intelligent design. The bag is now ready to toss into the car, from there to the boat, to be dropped in the water, and otherwise mistreated. You will fall over it in the dark and break your chin on the dissecting table, but still, I like my duffie bags. They hold more stuff than any other form of luggage and then can take the punishment that high-priced stuff cannot.

It is in unpacking that the duffie bag shines. Cut the knot and the bag unpacks itself. It explodes, but noiselessly. Everything may then be picked up and put in order. Such bags are fine for everything but one's dinner jacket.

DIXIE MILL CHIEFS MEET AT CAPITOL

Group Headed by Donald Comer Will Advise of Industry's Ills.

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(AP)—A delegation of the south's cotton mill owners arrived in Washington today to add their words to those being gathered by a special cabinet committee studying ills of the cotton industry.

The delegation, representing the American Association of Cotton Manufacturers, went into immediate conference to complete arguments to be made when the cabinet committee resumes its conference tomorrow.

Two New England groups—representing Maine and Rhode Island, already have been heard and others from the north will appear next week. Also to be present at tomorrow's conference are Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, Senator Byrnes, of South Carolina, and Representative Bulwinkle, of North Carolina.

Comer Heads Group.

The southern committee, headed by Donald Comer, of Birmingham, Ala., chairman, and T. H. Webb, of Concord, N. C., president of the American Association, were guided in preparing their briefs tonight by the experience of the northerners who for two days presented their arguments, then in turn submitted to searching cross-examination by the cabinet members, and particularly by Secretary Wallace.

The southern group was expected to join the New Englanders in an appeal for a substitute for the cotton processing tax and some form of protection against Japanese imports, and to object vehemently to elimination of existing section wage differentials as demanded by the north.

Feeling was strong between the two groups over this issue, with many northern manufacturers and all the state officials who have appeared, insisting that so far as New England is concerned, no assistance that might be provided would be of any benefit unless accompanied by a general wage equalization.

On Capitol Hill, a sizeable textile industry group, including the outcome of the cabinet committee conference, Representative Martin, republican, Massachusetts, due back in Washington tomorrow, was to review his requests for a mass, bipartisan interview with the president on the textile situation, and on Saturday night will assail the processing tax in a nationwide broadcast.

Bounty Predicted.
While the southern group made no comment as to the position it would take at tomorrow's meeting, Samuel G. Lamport, New York exporter, predicted in Greenville, S. C., that it would propose a bounty of $35 a bale to be paid to manufacturers on exported cotton goods.

Lamport said the proposal had been well received at the recent Augusta convention of the American association and expressed belief it probably would be the focal point of discussion here. The idea is similar to the old export bounty plan, discussed frequently for many years.

The cabinet committee today made public a revised schedule of conferences, as follows:

Friday—T. G. Dorr, president, and other members of the Cotton Textile Institute; George A. Sloan, chairman, and other members of the Cotton Textile Institute; and N. C. Williams, president of the American Cotton Cooperative Association.

Monday—Winthrop L. Carter, president, and other members of the New England council, with Governor James M. Curley, of Massachusetts.

Tuesday—Senators Walsh and Coolidge, Representative A. Platt Andrews and Massachusetts manufacturers.

Wednesday—Governor Cross and Connecticut manufacturers.

Friday, May 10—Governor Bridges and Connecticut manufacturers.

Southerners Here.
The southern delegation to appear tomorrow includes W. M. McLaurine, of Charlotte, N. C., secretary of the association; B. B. Gossett, of Charlotte; J. E. Siering, of Greenville, S. C.; R. E. Henry, of Greenville, vice president of the association; S. W. Cramer, of Charlotte, a member of the National Industrial Conference Board and of the Textile Foundation; Herman Cone, of Greensboro, N. C.; Hill Freeman, of Newnan, Ga.; T. M. Marchant, of Greenville, and W. P. Jacobs, of Clinton, S. C.

Washington and London Direct Cable Opened

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(AP)—

Direct cable communication between Washington and London was opened at 11 a. m. (E. S. T.) today when secretary Hull sent the first message over the new direct printer circuit to Robert W. Bingham, American ambassador to Great Britain.

Two printer machines were set up at the state department, and Hull's greeting to Ambassador Bingham, and to receive an instantaneous reply from the ambassador in the embassy in London.

late increased world cotton consumption promises to be one of the chief subjects of discussion at the seventeenth international cotton conference which opens here today. The English Master Cotton Spinners' Federation has submitted a memorandum on the silver question.

For many years the federation has been one of the strongest advocates for the remonetization of silver and for other monetary measures, claiming that in such action lay the only cure for the ills of the cotton manufacturing industry.

Many other cotton associations also are of this belief, which is based upon the fact that China and India, both of which are silver-using countries, are among the largest importers of cotton goods.

Views of the silver advocates will be challenged by the Belgian delegation, which asserts that a return to gold is necessary for world-wide cotton recovery. It is recalled that slightly more than a month ago Belgium devalued her currency after an unsuccessful battle to check the flow of gold from that nation.

P. T. A. HEALTH DRIVE STRESSED AT MIAMI

MIAMI, Fla., May 1.—(AP)—The National Congress of Parents and Teachers today launched a 1935 campaign to send children free from tarding ailments to the county's schools next fall.

The trust's confession followed a search investigation conducted by Detectives J. Hiram Davis and C. E. McCrary, the same officers who last year solved the murder of Max Schabom.

Declaration that if Butler had been allowed to go home it was in direct violation of a special order prohibiting city prisoners who work in the jail from leaving the building, was made by Councilman G. Dan Bridges, chairman of the police committee. The only prisoners permitted any time off are those who work in the basement. Bridges declared.

TOOL-PROOF BARS PLANNED FOR JAIL

Bids Asked on Better Barriers; Trusts Admits Aiding in Break.

Tool-proof steel bars probably will be installed on the third floor of the new city jail as a result of the escape last week of W. A. Reeves, R. B. Haynie and J. C. McConnell Jr., it was revealed yesterday when O. H. Pendley, police secretary, and Ed Gilliam, chairman of council's special building committee, instructed Architects Burke and Stephens, designers of the jail, to obtain bids on the escape-proof steel bars which would be placed just outside the present bars, through which the prisoners sawed their way to freedom.

That the installation may be accomplished for less than $1,000 was the expressed belief of both Mr. Gilliam and Mr. Pendley. Under the plan, the escape-proof steel bars would be placed on all of the 36 windows which connect with cells in which major offenders are confined.

The mystery of how the trip, under burglary indictments in the robberies of the Kress and Muse stores totaling more than $2,700, secured the saws was uncovered yesterday with the confession of William Butler, negro trusty, that he had smuggled the hacksaws used in the sensational delivery into the cell block.

According to Butler, Reeves offered him $5 to secure the hacksaw blades for him. The negro said he borrowed 50 cents from Reeves and purchased the blades at a dime store and fastened them to this underwear Sunday, April 21. The negro had been given liberty for the one day, as is the custom with trusties. When he returned to the jail next morning the blades were not discovered in the customary search.

Butler, who was serving out a fine of $17 imposed in recorder's court for disorderly conduct, is now being held in jail facing an indictment for aiding in the jail delivery.

More Rain Predicted For Atlanta Today

Increasing cloudiness, followed by showers, is on the weather menu for Atlanta today, according to George W. Mindling, forecaster here. The weather will continue warm.

"The crest of the high pressure area which brought cool weather to Atlanta has moved eastward but a storm is coming in from the west and the city will experience more rain," the meteorologist said. "In other words, April showers are continuing on into May."

The mercury will climb to around 76 degrees this afternoon. The high yesterday was 80 degrees.

F. D. R. Aids Meet On '36 Campaign

WASHINGTON, May 1.—(AP)—Taking some cognizance of the political campaigns ahead, President Roosevelt and his chief lieutenants were disclosed today to have surveyed the national situation—politically and economically—at an unannounced White House conference.

As reported on Capitol Hill, the powwow, held last night, reached a decision to go ahead on the present basis. It was added by one man, who declined to be quoted by name, that it had been further agreed that no politics would be the best politics for the time being.

Those participating in the parley were reported as Secretaries Hull and Roper, Postmaster-General Farley, Attorney General Cummings, Vice President Garner, Speaker Byrnes, Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, Frank C. Walker, intimate of the president, and Charles West, liaison officer with congress.

One party leader described the conversation as general in scope, touching on the economic, political and legislative situations. He added that the meeting had been an optimistic one.

Missouri Votes Share, Regains FERA Aid

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., May 1.—(AP)—Missouri's democratic-controlled legislature overrode federal relief instructions today and republicans shouts that "we're simply cringing on our bellies at the feet of the dictator in Washington."

"I say to hell with such dictatorship," stormed Representative O. B. Whitaker, Hickory county republican, prior to adoption by the house of a senate resolution appropriating $500,000 for May relief.

The legislative action restored Missouri to the federal relief rolls within 12 hours after the FERA had "cracked down" and brought relief activities to a virtual standstill.

Missouri's federal allotment for May was expected to be released as soon as Wallace Crossley, state relief director, wired county directors to resume the relief programs, saying "May allotments to follow."

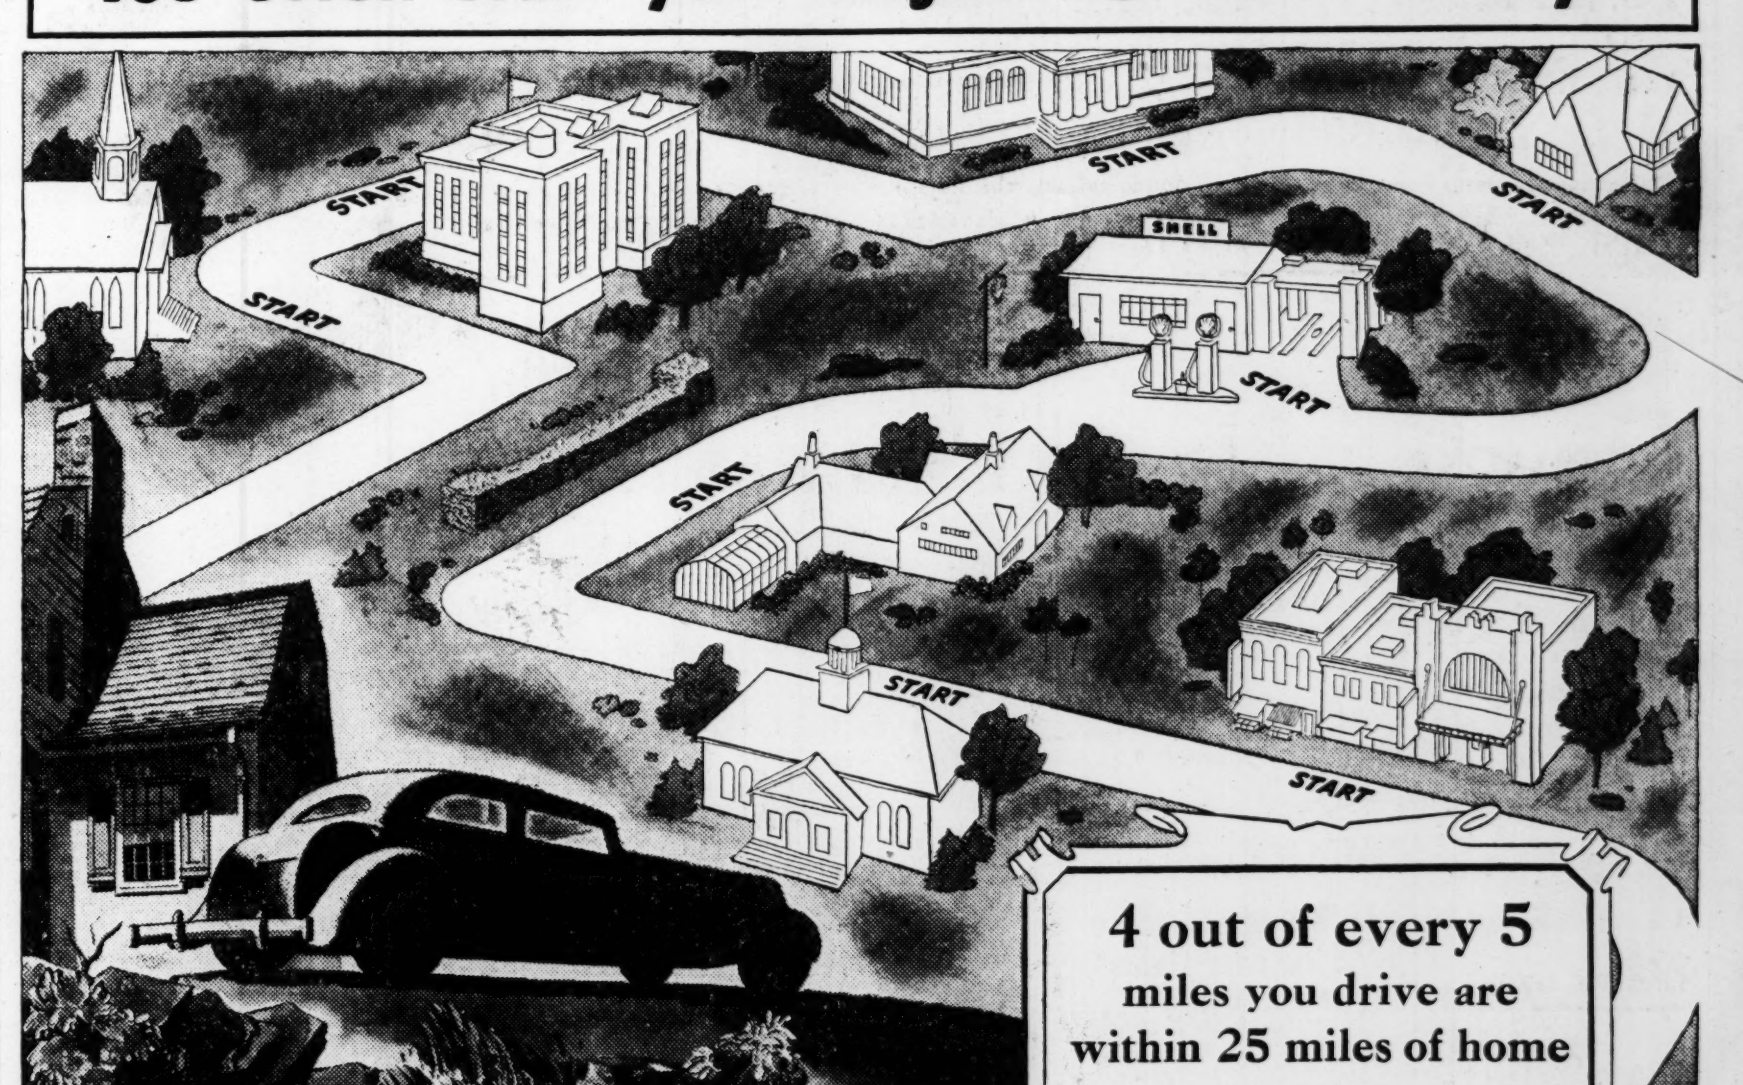

9 Anti-Long Jurors Lose Court Fight

NEW ORLEANS, May 1.—(AP)—The Louisiana supreme court today enjoined a minority group of anti-Long police jurors from interfering with administration of the affairs of East Baton Rouge parish by a majority of jurors friendly to the organization of Senator Huey P. Long, "dictator" of state politics.

Meanwhile, the state administration's legal department was preparing to renew its attack in federal district court here tomorrow against the city of New Orleans' effort to renege its financial under the Fletcher-Wilcox act of congress.

The state's highest tribunal ordered to present interference in the administration of 17 jurors hostile to the administration of Long.

You often start your engine 15 times a day!

4 out of every 5 miles you drive are within 25 miles of home

Today's constant starting wastes your money

—if your gasoline doesn't have these 3 different kinds of power

KEEP track of the number of times a day you step on your STARTER! Then you'll realize that it's the SHORT TRIPS which run up so much of your mileage! Shopping, business and social trips account for 80 MILES out of every 100 you drive!

So you need a gasoline . . . that not only starts off fast and warms up your engine quickly . . . that not only PICKS UP swiftly without using too much gasoline . . . that not only is economical on STEADY RUNNING between stops . . . But is thrifty in all these 3 ways!

In short, you need a gasoline that has 3 different kinds of power . . . and has these three kinds of power IN PERFECT BALANCE!

Super-Shell is the FIRST truly balanced gasoline! It is another great achievement by Shell engineers—the men who pioneered in such important developments as the "weather-conditioning" of gasoline.

Won't you start saving money TODAY at one of the 30,000 neighborly Shell stations from Coast to Coast?

SHELL SUPER-SHELL

Saves on today's stop-and-go driving

Saves Gasoline 3 WAYS

1. Can save up to a cupful on every "cold" start.
2. Can save up to a cupful in ten minutes of rapid accelerating or hill climbing.
3. Can save up to a cupful in every hour of steady running, many motorists report.

Dr. and Mrs. Fischer Will Share Beauty of Roses With Public

By Sally Forth.

DR. AND MRS. L. C. FISCHER'S desire to share the beauty of thousands of roses blooming on their estate prompted these generous-hearted Atlantans to open their gardens to the public. They extend invitation to lovers of these glorious blossoms to visit their country place on the Chamblee-Dunwoody road near Chamblee. Reaching full height at the end of this week, the roses will present a veritable oasis of bloom. Motorists are requested to drive around the driveway leading to the handsome colonial home of Dr. and Mrs. Fischer. The drive leads to the entrance of the rose gardens near Nancy's creek, which flows through Flowerland, the name of the estate. At this season it could be appropriately named Roseland, for every hue and variety of rose is a bloom there.

The rose is a favorite flower with Dr. and Mrs. Fischer. They have spent years cultivating the bloom that traces its history from the sweet, wild rose of Sharon down to the stately hybrid rose of today. Authorities tell us that to trace the evolution of the rose one must go back to it in song and story. Doing this, one finds that not only does the literature of every nation extol the beauty of the rose, but that 1,000 years before the birth of Christ, the "Sweet Singer of Israel" was probably the first to forever attach romance to the rose. Whether a lover of the rose for its historical background or for its sheer beauty and fragrance, it is well worth anyone's time to view the Fischer gardens. Indeed, the gardens present a glamorous rose kingdom.

When Ernest Rogers went to work yesterday morning, he had the novel experience of meeting his own house, which, at the moment, was moving out West Peachtree.

No, it was not an apparition. Nor had he been on a party the night before. And if you think Sally's joking, then you should have gone to work via West Peachtree yesterday.

You see, Ernest (whom you perhaps know as "Jelly") and his wife, Mary Weems Rogers, bought the cute little house which every one went to see and oh-ed and ah-ed over when it stood at the corner of Peachtree and Linden streets.

You know, it was the one the Federal Housing Administration built out of practically nothing, just to show you how it could be done.

Of course, everyone wanted to live in the little house, but "Jelly" and Mary were the fortunate purchasers. They already owned a lot on Collier road, and when you saw that house on the move yesterday it was headed for its position on that lot.

THE annual flower show to be staged next week by the Peachtree Garden Club will provide the rendezvous for the fashionable and flower-minded set in Atlanta and its environs. The decorative scheme is under the supervision of Mrs. W. H. Kiser and her committee, who will see to it that the effective decorations will exceed those of last year.

The white banisters will be entwined with trailing ivy, pastel-shaded awnings will extend over the gallery, and the stately cedars placed at the end of the streets will be a distinctive feature to the setting. Mrs. Kiser's committee includes Mesdames Frank Ellis, Andrew Calhoun, W. P. Hill, J. D. Robinson, Robert Maddox, Preston Arkwright, Malcolm Fleming, Hunter Perry, Frank Fleming, Phil McDuffie and Charles Sisson.

Howard—Farmer.

WASHINGTON, Ga., May 1.—Mr. and Mrs. Howard and their daughter, Beatrice Eggleston, to Lieutenant Joseph Madison Farmer, of Great Smoky National Park, N. C., which will be an event of June 1.

The ceremony will take place at the First Presbyterian church here at 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon and will be witnessed by an assemblage of friends and relatives. Rev. A. G. McInnis will pronounce the wedding vows. Mrs. Reuben Burdette, of Thomson, will give musical selection.

The bride-elect is the eldest daughter of her parents. After graduating at the Washington High school she completed her education at S. C. W. She is a gifted musician. For several years she has been on the faculty of the Thomson school.

Lieutenant Farmer, the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Farmer, of New York, graduated at the Thomson High school, later studying in Cincinnati. For sometime he has been stationed at Great Smoky National Park, near Bryson City, N. C., where he is supervisor.

Miss Howard has selected as her wedding attendants a number of her school girl friends. They are Mrs. Howard Perry, of Dawson; Miss Martha Brown, of Claxton; Miss Addie Atwood, of Cedar Point; Miss Betty Lowe, of Washington; Mrs. Marion Moore, of Blackhawk; Miss Julia Reese, of Eatonton; and Mrs. Bob Smith, of Augusta. The junior bridesmaids will be Virginia Howard and Joan Atkinson, of Beech Island.

Writers' Club Holds Literary Contest

Rules governing the entry of manuscripts in the annual literary contest held by the Atlanta Writers' Club are announced by Mrs. Roland D. Barze, chairman of the prose group, and Miss Marguerite Steedman, chairman of the poetry forum. All entries must be submitted by May 9, closing date of the contest, only members in good standing with dues paid are eligible to compete.

Short stories may be any length up to three thousand words and the articles up to twenty-five hundred words. Not more than one manuscript in each class may be entered by a member. Poems on any subject in any form up to 32 lines will be acceptable in the poetry division and each competitor may submit as many poems as desired. All manuscripts must be sent anonymously, accompanied by a small sealed envelope containing the name of the author or poet. Stories and articles are to be sent to Mrs. Barze at 380 Sixth street, N. E., and poems to Miss Steedman, care of the Sunday Magazine section of the Atlanta Journal.

Cash prizes will be awarded and prize-winning manuscripts read at the May meeting of the club, which has been postponed until May 23, in order to extend the time allowed for judging contest entries. In a recent contest, sponsored by the poetry forum, prizes were won by Mesdames Lida W. Turner, Laura Boyd Shallenbeger, and Maude Lay Elton.

Miss Nelson and Mr. Rains Wed At Beautiful Afternoon Ceremony

Miss Elinor Nelson, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Nelson, became the lovely bride of Mr. and Mrs. Rains Jr. at a beautiful afternoon ceremony solemnized at 5:30 o'clock Wednesday in the Winship Memorial chapel of the First Presbyterian church. Dr. J. E. Evans, of Hillsboro, Ill., uncle of the bride, read the marriage service, assisted by the Rev. Dr. J. Spole Lyons, pastor of the church. A company of one hundred friends and relatives of the young couple assembled to witness the ceremony.

An effective color scheme of green and white featured the floral motif in the chapel. Tall palms and ferns massed the rear of the choir loft, and adorning the pulpit was a mound of white peonies and white snapdragons. Arising from the mound were a pair of seven-branched candelabra holding white waxen tapers. Flanking either side of the pulpit were tall floor standards topped with white flowers. The gowns featured long, full sleeves, gathered into cuffs at the wrists, and full, floor-length skirts. The bodices were fastened with rows of small mousseline-covered buttons up the front. Miss Cresswell and Miss Pate wore pale green mousseline, and Miss Lindsay's gown was of a slightly deeper tone of green. They wore picture hats of gray, with long, flowing shades, and completing their costumes were colonial bouquets of white roses and sweet peas encased in lace paper holders.

Richard and Harry Nelson Jr., brothers of the bride, acted as groomsmen. Willard Eiseaman served as best man for Mr. Rains.

Lovely Bride Enters.

The lovely young bride entered the chapel with her father, Harry B. Nelson, who gave her in marriage. Her bridal robes of filmy white chiffon, posed over white crepe and fastened back with a row of small blue buttons, flared into a short train, and finished with a short face veil. The veil was caught at intervals with dainty sprays of orange blossoms and it extended to completely cover the

Giants Finally Down Their Jinx and Beat Those Dodgers, 8-3

FLATBUSH SAD AS NEW WORKERS TAKE BROOKLYN

Terrymen End Dodgers' Domination and Series Stands at 1-All.

By Edward J. Neil.

Associated Press Sports Writer.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., May 1.—(AP)—With great sighs of relief, amid the deepest of Brooklyn gloom, the Giants finally crushed their jinx today, beating Casey Stengel's Dodgers, 8 to 3, for the first time since the flatbush fusiliers knocked them out of the 1934 pennant last fall.

Brooklyn's faithful did their part to attend—8,000 of them all told—filling the air with raucous cries, torn paper, and the smoke and booming of big cannon cracker known locally as Brooklyn greeting cards. But it was no use. The athletes couldn't hit LeRoy (Bud) Parmelee for anything much but home runs. The Giants, the Brooklyn hurlers for just as many and lots of other things besides, and so the three-game series was all ended at one crack. The Giants went far ahead in first place, and to their great joy will escape from here, possibly with all their arms and legs, still holding high interest in the National league, no matter who owns the third game tomorrow.

DOMINATION ENDS. Brooklyn's domination of the Giants thus ended at three straight—the two games that finished off the Giants and pushed the Cardinals into the World Series last fall, and the first game of the series yesterday.

The No. 1 Public Enemy of all who hold the Dodgers dear, a giant shortstop named Dick Bartell was the particular fly in the Brooklyn's soup today. They threw enough cannon crackers at him to blow his legs off, but they couldn't stop him. Bartell, who spiked Linus Frey, badly last June, and Joe Judge the spring before, smacked Johnny Babich for a home run in the third, tripled off Frank Lamanske in the fourth, and made an amazing stop and throw off Al Lopez to force Joe Stripp at second and end the game after the Dodgers had scored two runs and were bruising Parmelee freely in the ninth. Babich, the young right-hander who pitched a one-hitter against the Phillies last time, was bettered in less than three innings as the Giants piled up 11 hits all told. Joe Moore's triple and the first of Bill Terry's three singles scored a run in the first. The teller's homer, Terry's single, Gus Mancuso's double, finished Johnny in the third with four more runs in and brought Lamanske to the rescue.

Bartell's triple, a couple of timely flies accounted for two off Lamanske in the fourth, whereupon the old dazler arrived and shut the Giants out with two hits, one a triple by Ott in four innings. Munnis pitched the last inning for Brooklyn after Vance gave way to a pinch hitter.

Homers by Frey and Danny Taylor accounted for all the Brooklyn runs as the Dodgers hit Parmelee safely only seven times. Frey belted one over the right field wall in the second, only hit off Parmelee in the first five innings, bringing forth a junior World War demonstration from the faithful. Taylor's smash in the same place came with two out in the ninth after Cincinnati's double play.

'Doc' Prothro Names His 1928 Club as Best

Selects Outfield of Taylor, Frederick and Jeanes as "Tops," Picks Hurling Staff.

By Jimmy Jones.

Looking in retrospect upon seven years of highly successful managing in the Southern league, there is one ball club that stands out in the clear-cut memory of James T. (Doc) Prothro as the best ball club ever managed.

That is the Memphis ball club of 1928 and in the opinion of the little ex-dentist, it is perhaps the most powerful all-around ball club in the Southern league's history, including all the great ones developed at New Orleans in recent years.

Prothro had standout clubs at Memphis in '28, '30 and '32. During all of his half dozen years at the helm of the Chickasaws, he was never out of the first division. The team of 1928 did not win a pennant since the season was split that year and it got beat in the play-off. The 1930 team won the pennant and that of 1932 was beaten out by Chattanooga in a two-point finish that Judge Landis finally had to step in and settle.

"That '28 club was the best of them all, even if it didn't win the championship," Prothro was saying yesterday.

"There was a ball club that had everything, including the best pitching staff ever assembled in the Southern league and what I consider the best outfield."

BEST OUTFIELD. Prothro contends that his outfield of that year, consisting of Danny Taylor, Fred Jones in center and Johnny Frederick in right, led the league in all-round outfield the league has ever had. All three of these players, he pointed out, went to the big leagues and Taylor and Frederick are still up there.

The doctor takes issue with the contention of Nashville that the Vol outfield of '23, comprised of Kid Cuyler, Lance Richbourg and Bevo Lebourveau, was the tops. All three of these players also went up. Cuyler with the Pirates, Richbourg with the Braves and Lebourveau with the Athletics. Cuyler, now with the Cubs is still a great star, and Richbourg was a good ball player for several years up there, but Lebourveau did not make the major grade.

"Tex Jeanes was a great ball hawk in those days, Danny Taylor was knocking the fences down and Frederick, bought by Brooklyn, led the National league in two-base hits the next year. Yes, that was the best outfield I ever saw in this league," the doctor declared.

THE PITCHING STAFF. Prothro also insists that his pitching staff of that year, which included "Tennessee" Shepherd, Harry Kelley, Fred Johnson, Tony Weizer, Kit May, Clarence Griffin and Johnny Walker, the best staff the league has ever seen.

He does not exclude Larry Gilbert's great crowd of Martin, Danforth, Collier, and Walker, et al, or Johnny Dobbs' great 1924 Memphis staff of Slim McGraw, Otto Merz, Cy Warshawski, Tom Rogers, Monroe Mitchell, Harry Kelley, etc.

The doctor has had some mighty good ball clubs in his day. But he is firmly convinced that the '28 outfield and the '28 pitching staff of Memphis rank among the all-time Southern league superlatives.

NAMES KELLEY. As the three best pitchers he ever had at Memphis, he lists "Tennessee" Shepherd, who went up to the Giants and ruined his arm in cold weather; Harry Kelley, now with the Crackers, and Clarence (Pop) Griffin, the left-hander now with Birmingham. Walter Beck, who went up to Brooklyn, was a great one-year man for him in 1932.

Prothro has shifted his managerial talents to Little Rock, where the pickings are lean at present, but which offers an unlimited field to a man of the doctor's talents. He is having a tough time getting a club together now, but thinks he will come up with a real team two years hence. He is pleased by the fact that the Travelers opened before a crowd of 6,000 this year—third best in the league—and that they have played to more than 20,000 people on the road.

In view of the Travelers' position in the standing, this proves that no matter what kind of a ball club they have, the Travelers still have Prothro.

Hawkins Electric Wins Pin Play-Off

The Hawkins Electric Company won the five-game play-off for the championship of the Southern Duckpin league from the Dr. Pepper Bottling Company in a match that was spaced with thrills with the Electric team emerging as victors by a 10-pin margin.

At the end of the five game series the Hawkins Electric team had 2,537 to 2,527 for the Dr. Pepper Bottling Company team.

The play-off climaxed a sensational series of matches in the league in which close competition had reigned with both of the teams being close contestants for the championship crown.

McCarthy Down With Pneumonia

NEW YORK, May 1.—(AP)—Joe McCarthy, manager of the New York Yankees, is ill with bronchial pneumonia in a hospital here and his condition is such that physicians have ordered that no visitors be permitted. This injunction includes members of the Yankees.

McCarthy caught cold last week while the Yanks were playing in Boston. Pneumonia developed yesterday. Coach Arthur Fletcher is temporarily in command of the club.

TODAY SETS PACE IN DERBY DRILL AT LOUISVILLE

Boxthorn Also Turns in Fine Time; Others Work Out.

By Jimmy Jones.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 1.—(AP)—The few chosen thoroughbreds considered worthy to start in the first running of the Kentucky Derby ended severe training periods today, leaving high hopes and heartbreaking disappointments among the owners of 110 original nominees announced two months ago. Only two days remain before the big race at Churchill Downs Saturday.

C. V. Whitney's brown colt, Today, loomed as probable post-time favorite, having won a mile and one-eighth in 1:55.15, and then galloped out the remaining eighth of the mile and a quarter Derby route in 2:08.45.

Trainer Jack Heale's only observation was, "Today's done everything we've asked of him and done it easily."

CHANCE SUN OUT. Another splendid colt, Joseph E. Widener's Chance Sun, beat a sad retreat back to Elmdorf farm in the bluegrass, a victim of what was believed to be a ringbone. His owner said positively Chance Sun, the winner of book favorite, would not start in the Derby.

Colonel E. R. Bradley's Boxthorn furnished what trained observers said was the standout effort of the pre-Derby training grind at Churchill Downs, a spin today over the full Derby route of a mile and a quarter in 2:06.45. "Derby Dick" Thompson, trainer for the Idle Hour farm, appeared satisfied that Boxthorn measured up to Colonel Bradley's specifications for a Derby winner.

Ability to stay in the run and cover the last quarter in 25 seconds. Boxthorn's last quarter of the workout was run in exactly that time. Jockey Don Meade was used, and kept a snug hold on his mount until he had reached the mile in 1:41.45.

Plat Eye, from the Greentree stable of Mrs. Payne Whitney, also went the full Derby route. Jockey Silvio Couced had the leg on the Chesapeake winner as he breezed the 10 furlongs in 2:10.

ST. BERNARD. E. D. Staffer's St. Bernard, regarded as a "dark horse," stepped a mile in 1:39.35, very handsly, and galloped out the extra quarter in 2:08.15.

Mrs. Charles Hainsworth's Black Bird was put down as a "sleeper," when under guidance of her husband jockey-trainer the Bostonian colt breezed 10 furlongs in 2:08 handsly.

Omaha, William Woodward's hope to repeat the 1930 victory of Gallant Fox, breezed a mile and an eighth in 1:55.45 and galloped out the additional furlong in 2:10. J. H. Loucheim's Morpick rattled off a mile in 1:40.25 and pulled up a mile and an eighth in 1:54.

WESTON DOUBTFUL. Roman Soldier was not called upon for a speed trial today, nor were Nel-Flag, sensational filly, and Whiskolo, winner of yesterday's preparation race over a field of lesser Derby eligibles. Jonett Shouse's Weston was reported ready for withdrawal, after disappointing trials this week.

Three seconds flight Derby candidates joined the list of doubtful starters when they bowed to Colonel E. R. Bradley's Bit of Sorrow, a non-eligible in today's Barnstable purse, a seven-furlong race.

A BIT OF HISTORY.

General U. S. Grant is one of my favorite characters in history and as this was his home town I did a bit of research. He was peddling kindling here, having been fired out of the army for boozing, when the War Between the States came along. He won the war and he became president of his country. And that with a late start.

So today I found the Grant landmarks and the house where he was born. We do not care much for our historical places in this country and I was shocked to find that the house in which Grant was married was boarded up. It used to be a rooming house but even that failed and so today it is just an old brick house in the old section of St. Louis with boards on the windows and doors.

There is a museum here in which are displayed the Charles Lindbergh relics which followed his flight to Paris in the Spirit of St. Louis. And you would be surprised at the crack-pot things which were sent him as presents. They told me today he was about to be fired by the company which employed him so this discouraged him and he became interested in flying the Atlantic.

Well, you never can tell.

Casey Given Credit for Win Over Pirates

Hugh Casey, former Cracker, who made his first appearance as a major league pitcher for the Chicago Cubs in Monday's game, was adjudged the winning pitcher over Pittsburgh. The ruling was made by the official scorer, subject to verification by Ford Frick, president of the National league.

Had Fabian Kowalk been effective in the one inning he pitched, the eighth, he would have been the winning pitcher. It was announced. But Kowalk allowed a double, a single, and a home run for three runs. Casey, his immediate predecessor, allowed no runs in the 2-1-3 innings he pitched and did not leave his task under pressure.

National league scoring rules advise the official scorer to designate the most effective pitcher under circumstances such as prevailed in Tuesday's game, when seven pitchers were used by the Cubs in defeating the Pirates, 12 to 11.

The Cubs got Casey on trial from the Crackers last fall.

GAMES WANTED. The Wolverines, Fort McPherson, would like to schedule a few baseball games for Sunday afternoons, especially one Sunday, May 5. Please telephone or write John W. Elliott Jr., Fort McPherson, Georgia (Raymond 3131, Exchange 28). We will be glad to play any team in a league as a practice game.

STATE TOURNEY AWARDED ROME WEEK OF JULY 9

Billy McWilliams To Defend Title on Coosa Club Course.

By Roy White.

Georgia's amateur golfers will play their 1935 state championship tournament over the Coosa Country Club, Rome, Ga., July 9-13, it was announced Wednesday morning by officials of the Georgia Amateur Golf Association.

It will be the first time in more than a dozen years that the tourney has been played north of Atlanta and should stimulate interest in that section of the state.

Officials of the Coosa Club last year asked for the 1935 tourney, but the course was not suitable for championship play, the state officials decided. George P. Byrd, the president, Bill Harmon, club professional, and Joe Sulzacker, greens keeper, went to work and made the course a real test for championship golf and invited officials of the state association to inspect their layout.

Veazy Rainwater Sr., Wimberly Peters and Keith Conway, officials of the state association, went over the course thoroughly and Wednesday announced that it was okay in every way.

LEGS, HANDS AND WIND. "My intentions," observed Max Baer, "are concerned with three factors in the next few weeks. These three are legs, hands and wind. I may be daffy in the dome and comical in the cupola, but I am not quite nutty enough to face the program that lies ahead in poor condition."

"You remember," Max continued, "that I was singing the Max Baer blues last winter because there was no one to fight. Now they've rung in a chunk of the directory on me with Braddock, Joe Louis, Carnera and Schmeling all on the list. They all want a shot at the championship, so I can have as busy a summer as I care to tackle."

"With this program ahead, I've got to get busy on the three things I mentioned—first—legs, hands and wind. If these three are right—and they will be—I'll let the others do the worrying. I am going to build up my legs, strengthen and toughen my hands and get my wind in shape. And I'm not as far away from condition right now as many seem to think."

Boxing and Punching. "You may recall," Baer went on, "that I told you a year ago, at Salisbury Park, while training for Carnera, that I would never be a boxer. As I understand it, Jim Corbett had his choice. As a young fighter, he was a hard puncher. Jim was also a fine boxer from the start. He knew he couldn't be both—so he decided to take the scientific road. I had no such choice. I'd never make a clever boxer, and I know it. But I could always punch and so far I've been able to take the other fel-

BRADLEY'S ASSETS, LIABILITIES LISTED

Fugitive Bond & Share President Said To Owe $602,603.

Benjamin R. Bradley, fugitive president of the American Bond & Share Corporation, left behind him liabilities of $602,603, and assets of $87,200 when he fled from Atlanta early in April to avoid arrest on federal indictments charging him with using the mails to defraud and violation of the United States securities act.

Total liabilities and assets of Bradley were listed in a petition of creditors filed in the federal district court yesterday by R. J. Reynolds Jr., as attorney for John L. Webb, Mrs. Ada

Knox Wood and William A. Johnston. Included in the Bradley assets are $9,000 in real estate, $9,721.52 in bank deposits, $46,929.21 in unliquidated claims and $17,567.63 in debts due on open account.

Another petition covering the liabilities and assets of the American Bond & Share Corporation, a Bradley company, showed the former to be $58,805.32, all in unsecured claims, and $29,691.08 in assets, of which $34,140 are in bills, promissory notes and securities, $1,026.07 in debts due on open accounts, and $24,398 in unliquidated claims.

Liabilities of the American Bond & Share Corporation of Georgia were listed at $24,788.86, mostly in unsecured claims, while assets are $29,691.08. In this list of assets is included $15,291.57 for furniture and office equipment, $11,659.18 for debts due on open accounts and $2,931.45 in deposit in banks and brokerage houses.

Harry Dodd, referee in bankruptcy, has called a meeting of creditors of Bradley and the American Bond & Share affiliates for 10 o'clock the morning of May 13.

Cross Sections of Life In Gate City of South

Meeting of the Atlanta Advertising Club, scheduled for today, will be deferred until arrangement is completed for exhibition of the All-America prize-winning exhibit for modern packaging, Lennie W. Conger, vice president in charge of programs, announced.

Evangelistic services with preaching by the Rev. W. H. Faust will continue at the Gordon Street Baptist church through Sunday with the song service directed by Ernest Allen.

Levin, of New York, national field representative of the fund, will make a personal report of the progress of the campaign to raise $500,000 to acquire land in Palestine.

Play-Guilders Reveal Real Art In Presentation of Three Plays

If the three one-act plays presented last night by the Play-Guild in their initial performance are any criterion by which future productions may be judged, the organization should go far in the community life of Atlanta.

Physical limitations of facilities were the greatest drawback. The outstanding performance was the skillful handling of Charles O. Kennedy's farce, "Words in Edgewood." To this reviewer, the title might have been more apt had it been "Word in Edgewood."

Eunice Howson, cast as a gushing woman from Savannah, has, it is revealed, talked to death two husbands. If she paused in her dissertation, it was only to stop for breath. Her's was a difficult role, perfectly handled.

The role of Mr. Snodgrass, an author, was portrayed in pantomime at least it didn't appear that he had an opportunity to say more than a monosyllable—by C. T. Conyers. He shares, in this reviewer's opinion, top honors with Miss Howson.

An able cast of six presented "The Valiant," by Holworthy Hall and Robert Middleton. Bryant Selts, cast in the part of James Dyke, a condemned man, turned in a performance that fell but little short of inspired. Ward Holt was portrayed by W. L.

Albert C. Leitch. The fourth annual music festival of the Atlanta public schools presented the first of two concerts at the old city auditorium Wednesday evening with a chorus of 1,500 voices from the elementary schools, singing the hymn, "The Church is the Home of the Soul."

Lawrence G. Nelson, director of music in the schools, and Ruth Weogand, assistant director, were the piano and Charles Sheldon Jr. at the organ.

Rows upon rows of children dressed in pastel shades presented a human rainbow thrilling to the eye, and the songs to which they gave vocal expression were equally as thrilling to the ear. The tone quality was exquisitely lovely, the diction was unusually good, the phrasing noteworthy, the attacks fine, the rhythm quite excellent and the entire ensemble deserving of highest praise.

Dr. William Sutton, superintendent of the schools, sounded the feeling of all the large audience when he said, "The marvelous thing about the singing we are hearing is not all total beauty, for it represents what has been sung into the hearts and lives of each of these 1,500 children."

Appreciation of the work of the grade teachers for their untiring and excellent training of their own groups was expressed by both Dr. Sutton and the Rev. J. A. Reiser officiated and burial was in the Palmetto cemetery, Brunswick.

Funeral services for William C. Gilbert, 24, son of Dr. O. P. Gilbert, editor of the Christian Index, who died Monday night at a local hospital, died yesterday afternoon at the residence, 306 Sixteenth avenue, N. E., following an extended illness. He is survived by his wife, daughter, Mrs. George Kirby Croft; two sisters, Miss Minnie Bishop and Mrs. L. M. McDaniel; and a brother, H. W. Bishop, of Lithonia, and two grandchildren. Funeral services will be conducted at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon at Spring Hill. The Rev. S. F. Lowe will officiate and burial will be in the Lithonia cemetery.

CASSIUS C. NIXON, 44, of 191 Woodward avenue, S. W., died yesterday afternoon at a local hospital. He is survived by his wife, two brothers, Sam Nixon and Carl Nixon, both of Dayton, Ohio. Funeral arrangements will be announced by Harry G. Poole.

DANIEL E. LANFORD, 26, veteran chief engineer of the Southern Railway building, died late Tuesday night at the residence, 408 Boulevard, S. E., following an extended illness. He is survived by his wife, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. Lanford, of Lithonia, and two brothers, L. E. Lanford, of Lithonia, and W. M. Lanford, of Stone Mountain; his brother-in-law, George Stone Mountain.

LEGAL NOTICE. Effective this date I will not be responsible for any debts incurred by anyone other than myself.

JOHN HERMAN HENDERSON. GEORGIA—FULTON COUNTY.—The petition of J. W. Woodruff, of Milledgeville, Georgia, and S. A. Cline, Jr., of Fulton County, Georgia, respectfully shows: (1) That they desire for themselves, their associates and successors, to be incorporated under the name and style of Atlanta Broadcasting Company for the period of twenty years; (2) The office and place of business of said company shall be in the City of Atlanta, Fulton County, Georgia; (3) The object of said corporation is pecuniary gain to itself and its shareholders; (4) The business to be carried on by said corporation shall be: (a) To acquire, own, maintain and operate broadcasting stations by radio, wire, or other electrical instrumentality, including the transmission and reception of sound and light by television and to employ and use any and all means of wireless or radio transmission and reception as now in general use or which might hereafter be perfected, invented and devised, including all communication and transmission by wire, radio and of every kind and character; (b) To acquire, in own and to transfer licenses, franchises, copyrights and patents incidental to radio broadcasting, radio reception and radio transmission; (c) To acquire the business, good will and assets of any person, firm or corporation engaged in a similar business; (d) To purchase, acquire and own stock in other corporations; (e) To make contracts for advertising by radio, and to make contracts incidental and necessary to the carrying on of the business; (f) To do all other things incidental and necessary for radio broadcasting, radio receiving and radio transmission; (5) The capital stock of said corporation shall consist of one thousand shares of common stock without par value. At least one thousand dollars will actually be paid in for such non-par value common stock before the corporation begins business; (6) Petitioners desire the right to use and be used in and be impleaded, to have and use a common seal, to make all needful laws and regulations, and to do all other things that may be necessary for the successful carrying on of said business, including the right to buy, hold and sell real estate and personal property delectable to the purposes of the corporation; and to execute notes and bonds as evidence of indebtedness incurred, or which may be incurred, in the conduct of the affairs of the corporation and to secure the same by mortgage, security deed, or other form of lien, under existing laws; (7) They desire for said corporation the power and authority to apply for and accept amendments to its charter of either form or substance by a vote of a majority of its stock outstanding at the time; (8) They desire for the said corporation the right to amend, alter, change, modify, repeal, or annul any provision of its charter when and as provided by the laws of Georgia, and that it have all such other rights, powers, privileges and immunities as are incident to like corporations or permissible under the laws of Georgia. Wherefore, petitioners pray to be incorporated under the name and style aforesaid with the powers, franchises and immunities herein set forth, and as are now, or may hereafter be, allowed by the laws of Georgia.

Voices of 1,500 School Children Thrill in Concert at Auditorium

The fourth annual music festival of the Atlanta public schools presented the first of two concerts at the old city auditorium Wednesday evening with a chorus of 1,500 voices from the elementary schools, singing the hymn, "The Church is the Home of the Soul."

Lawrence G. Nelson, director of music in the schools, and Ruth Weogand, assistant director, were the piano and Charles Sheldon Jr. at the organ.

Rows upon rows of children dressed in pastel shades presented a human rainbow thrilling to the eye, and the songs to which they gave vocal expression were equally as thrilling to the ear. The tone quality was exquisitely lovely, the diction was unusually good, the phrasing noteworthy, the attacks fine, the rhythm quite excellent and the entire ensemble deserving of highest praise.

Dr. William Sutton, superintendent of the schools, sounded the feeling of all the large audience when he said, "The marvelous thing about the singing we are hearing is not all total beauty, for it represents what has been sung into the hearts and lives of each of these 1,500 children."

Appreciation of the work of the grade teachers for their untiring and excellent training of their own groups was expressed by both Dr. Sutton and the Rev. J. A. Reiser officiated and burial was in the Palmetto cemetery, Brunswick.
